PIRATE SPLIT RUMORED

Three Miners Are Shot From Ambush

GUN, IN FATHER'S HANDS, KILLS MOTHER OF FOUR

FIRED ACCIDENTALLY DURING CLEANING

June, 4; David, 7; Jesse, 9, and Thelma Stretch, 11, Spring street, Woodlawn, are orphans today. Their mother, Mrs. Florence Stretch, 27, was killed when shotgun, being cleaned by husband, accidentally discharged. Father, Jesse C. Stretch, was released by police on own recognizance.

SHOT GUNS ROAR ON LONELY ROAD

Three nonunion Negro miners employed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company are in Mercy Hospital suffering from gunshot wounds, having been shot from ambush at 6:30 o'clock this morning, while on their way to work, near Elizabeth.

The injured are William Cole, 22, shot in the shoulder; Fred Glover, 21, shot in the cheek, and William Burris, 27, shot in the neck.

The men were riding in an automobile to work. There were five passengers, but the other two escaped injury.

The shooting took place at a lonely spot in the road. There was a low hanging fog which made it impossible for the driver of the car or the occupants to detect the ambush. The Pittsburgh Coal Company has started an investigation.

SACCO WINS FIRST STEP IN NEW FIGHT

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, reprieved from the death chair last night 40 minutes before they were to be executed as slayers, will have a hearing by the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court on their bill of exceptions to Judge George A. Sanderson's denial of a writ of error.

Judge Sanderson announced this afternoon that he would allow the bill of exceptions, and it was said that the four justices of the Supreme Court who will hear the bill are all within 24 hours of the courthouse. They have already been notified to hold themselves in readiness for the session which will probably be held Tuesday.

The respite, granted by Gov. Alvan T. Fuller after a dramatic conference with his executive council, lasts until midnight of August 22.

If Sacco and Vanzetti lose in their appeal to the State Supreme Court, they are absolutely through.

They have no chance in the Federal courts. All avenues here were closed to them today by Judge An-

Lieut. George Covell, U. S. N., (above), with Lieut. E. W. Waggener, was killed yesterday when the plane they had entered in the Dole flight to Honolulu crashed into Point Loma, near San Diego, and burned. They had been given position "No. 13" in the flight.

No Citizen Ticket in Primary

The heart was taken out of efforts to place an independent ticket in the field against the Republican organization slate when it developed today that the Citizens' League of Pittsburgh does not intend to place candidates in the field for the primary election.

This development was indicated first when William L. King, executive secretary, told members of the League of Women Voters in the home of Mrs. Homer N. Young, 1412 Termon avenue, yesterday that his organization is looking forward to the mayoralty battle of 1928, and again when the executive board of the league, meeting in the office of the Rev. Dr. Charles R. Zahniser, decided to publish a bulletin giving the records of candidates for the information of the voters.

AUTO HITS EMSWORTH MAN

Knocked down by an automobile in Penn avenue near Highland avenue this morning, John C. Usher, 40, of Emsworth, was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital, suffering from a fracture of the skull. Habi Kazanjian, 30, of 3433 Bigelow boulevard, driver of the machine, was arrested.

PIRATE RANKS REPORTED TORN BY DISSENSION

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Hazen Cuyler, Pirate outfielder, who was fined $50 for listless baserunning in the opening game of the New York series, was kept on the bench again today by Manager Donie Bush.

Bush announced Cuyler would not play against the Cardinals today, but refused to comment on rumors that Cuyler had been traded. Cuyler said he had not been suspended "so far as I know."

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 11.—(UP.)—Internal dissension that has played havoc with previous Pittsburgh ball teams and caused the destruction of other pennant hopes, high built and worthy, threatens to burst forth anew this year and convert what is probably the best ball club in either league into an also ran—a team that might have been.

Year after year, with the exception of 1925, when the goal was finally reached, the Pirates have been victims of unfortunate messes into which were fed the chances of the club's winning the pennant. Torn and battered by strife between opposing cliques and factions in 1926, the Pittsburghers were forced out of a commanding lead into third place when the race was over. The same

Wife's Shrieks Revive "Dead" Husband; She Dies

FINDLAY, O., Aug. 11.—Mrs. Perry C. Linton Thomas shrieked hysterically when a physician yesterday pronounced her husband dead of cancer.

Her cries of anguish stirred the supposedly dead man and Thomas awakened.

Shocked by the sudden reversal, Mrs. Thomas collapsed and died, and the undertaker who had been called to care for the body of Thomas took the body of his wife.

Thomas lived three and a half hours after his wife's death.

A double funeral will be held Friday. Mrs. Thomas was 67 years old and her husband was 74.

Braddock Agent Slain

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(INS.)—Victor A. Lanby, of 449 Charles street, Braddock, Pa., coast guardsman, died today in a Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., hospital from wounds received in a battle last week with rum runners, the Treasury was advised.

This makes the third death of federal men from the battle. The others were Robert K. Webster, secret service operative, and Bos'n Mate Saunderlin. The battle took place on the high seas off the Bahamas.

JEALOUS MAN SHOOTS FILM ACTRESS-WIFE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 11.—Jealousy over a wife's desire for a film career was blamed by police today for the shooting here last night of Joyzelle Joyner, 20, dancer and screen actress.

Miss Joyner, wounded in her left arm when her estranged husband, Dudley V. Brand, shot through the closed door of her bedroom, was taken to a hospital where physicians said her injury was not serious.

EIGHT REBELS KILLED IN VERA CRUZ BATTLE

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Special dispatches from Vera Cruz report that eight rebels were killed and four soldiers and 16 rebels wounded in a three-hour combat in the Teocelo district of the State of Vera Cruz. The federal troops are said to have finally defeated and dispersed the rebel band, which was commanded by Uriel Martinez Virues.

Man Killed In Craps Game

When James Lawrence, Negro, 32, reached into the "pot" in a craps game to take $2 before he had won it, he started a quarrel which resulted in his death a few minutes later in House 121, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Moon Run, early this morning. He was shot in the head and chest, dying almost instantly.

Ben Shafer, Negro, was arrested charged with the shooting. He told state police he fired in self-protection when Lawrence brandished a butcher knife. Shafer was turned over to the coroner, and Emily Crestline, Negress, of Furnace street, McKees Rocks, was held as a witness.

GUARD CALIFORNIA BRIDGE AFTER DYNAMITE THEFT

VALLEJO, Cal., Aug. 11.—(AP.)—The big Carquinez Bridge across the junction of Suisun and San Pablo bays here and all power lines in Solona county were under guard today as the result of a report from the Mare Island Navy Yard that 18 sticks of dynamite were missing there.

County Sleuth Hits Hay—But He Gets Little Rest

Ben McWilliams, county detective, hit the hay last night. But how!

A stranger was seen entering a stable of the Alcoma Country Club in Penn township. County detectives were called. Several tons of hay in the barn seemed the likeliest hiding spot. Ben pitched the hay from mow to feed room. At the bottom he found George Smeltz of Universal. McWilliams pitched the hay back. Four hours of hay-pitching.

McWilliams is claiming the record among sleuths for tossing hay hither and yon. Hay, hay!

It's Horse of Another Color If Uncle Sam Loses Dry Case

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(AP).—When Dobbin is seized for hauling contraband liquor and the evidence later does not justify his detention, some one other than Uncle Sam must foot his board bill for the time he was in government custody.

In the remote mountains of Utah a team of horses was taken by prohibition agents and kept at a nearby ranch until lack of evidence made it necessary that they be returned to their owner. The proprietor of the ranch then sent the government a bill for the food the team had consumed and, when in due course it reached Comptroller General McCarl, payment was refused.

McCarl ruled that a horse properly seized could be sold for its board, but that in this case settlement must be made between the rancher, the owner of the horses and the prohibition agents.

FOUR, ALL ENEMIES

NEW CASTLE, Aug. 11.—Herman Buchner, of Albert street, exhibited a freak dahlia bloom today. Instead of the regulation one bloom at the end of the stem, there were four fully developed blossoms, each facing in a different direction.

SALLY'S SHOULDERS, NEW DANCE, HERALDS STORY

The passing of the old hoe-down and the beginning of the waltz; the slip of the quiet dancing into the galloping fox trots—the changing from the old to the new has found a counterpart.

For today "Sally's Shoulders," the newest dance, has been created. Yesterday it was unknown. And just because of Beatrice Burton's newest serial novel, "Sally's Shoulders" has hit Pittsburgh with a bang.

The new dance, which is illustrated by Barth studio dancers for the first time, is graceful—like Sally's Shoulders. It has poise and beauty and harmony—the salient qualities of the unusual pair of shoulders that, set upon Sally Jerome by a shiftless family and their laggard and selfish friends, made Sally a remarkable girl.

This Long-Distance Flier Should Get Even Break

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—At least an even break can be hoped for if the official registry number assigned by the government to the plane of Frederick A. Giles, who plans an 11,000-mile flight to Wellington, N. Z., has any bearing.

Workers at the Hess factory last night painted the number—5050—in letters three feet high on the wings of the Bluebird biplane in which Giles hopes to hop off some time today for San Francisco, the first leg of the flight.

RUSSELTON STILL SEIZED

Raiding a two-story frame house in Mine street, Russelton, prohibition agents reported finding a 250-gallon still in operation, 20 gallons of moonshine and 100 barrels of mash. They arrested Frank Raysona and later released him on $1,000 bond pending a hearing before a United States commissioner.

Assassin Attacks Ex-King

By International News Service.

GRAZA, USTRIA, Aug. 11—An attempt to assassinate former King George of Greece at the railway station at Kinkinda, near the Rumanian border, was reported today by the newspaper Grazer Tagepost.

According to report, an unidentified assailant, said to be a Rumanian journalist, broke through the police cordon and fired several shots into the former King's compartment aboard the train. None of the shots took effect.

The assailant was arrested and police announced they discovered a number of incriminating documents on his person. These were confiscated.

FORD UP WITH LINDY

DETROIT, Aug. 11.—Henry Ford took his first airplane ride when he climbed into the cockpit of the "Spirit of St. Louis" with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Ford Airport and was taken up this afternoon.

The decision to make the flight apparently was sudden, as no previous indication had been given either by those close to the motor manufacturer or by Col. Lindbergh, who spent the night at the Ford home after arriving here late yesterday on his nation-wide air tour.

Provision was made for taking Mr. Ford aloft by installing a special seat in the plane.

The plane, after taking off shortly before 1 o'clock, and cruising above the field, landed about 10 minutes later. Although Mr. Ford is an enthusiastic backer of aviation and has invested millions in his own factory, he never before had consented to make a flight.

RESPITE EXPLAINED

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Formal statements of Judge George W. Anderson of the United States Circuit Court, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court and Attorney General Arthur K. Reading were issued today in explanation of the denial by the Federal courts of a writ of habeas corpus for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Justice Holmes in denying the writ stated:

I am unable to find in the petition or affidavits . . . any facts that would warrant my issuing the writ. I have no authority to issue it unless it appears that the court (trial court) had not jurisdiction of the case in the real sense. I cannot think that prejudice on the part of the presiding judge, however strong, would deprive the court of jurisdiction, that is, a legal power to decide the case, and in my opinion nothing short of a warrant of legal power to decide the case authorizes me to interfere in this summary way with the proceedings of the state court.

Judge Anderson's statement likewise disclaimed authority in the case.

Attorney General Reading's statement said:

It should not be understood that Justice Holmes found or was even ready to find that Judge Thayer (trial judge) had been prejudiced, but simply ruled that, even if it should be found that Judge Thayer was prejudiced, there would be no occasion for Justice Holmes to interfere.

COUNTY SINKING FUND SHORT $1,230,000

Careless investments and poor business management have forced the sinking fund of Allegheny county into a shortage of $1,230,000 in payments of bonds and bond interest obligations, said County Controller Charles C. McGovern today after submitting a report of the statistics to the county commissioners. Unless the amount is provided, the commissioners will have to "rob Peter to pay Paul," he said, and still they may lack $1,253,000 to meet the obligations.

A cash reserve of $1,750,000 should be in the sinking fund to meet obligations without borrowing, the report indicates. Only $520,000 will be available January 1, 1928, it is indicated.

TAX LEVY SHORT

The tax levy for 1927 will fall short about $160,000 of meeting payments the fund should cover. A millage of 9¾ instead of 8¾ would have been necessary to raise the $1,230,00 deficiency, McGovern said, advising that the plan still is feasible for 1928, although the increased millage would be proportionately higher.

Obligations January 1, 1928, included 91 bond issues totaling $74,987, and a 36-year mortgage on the City-County Building of $600,000. The assets for 56 of these issues total $12,845,807.22. The 35 remaining issues are not protected by any sinking fund, although there are provisions for such protection.

CLEANING GUN, KILLS WIFE

Wounded in the neck and forehead when a shotgun her husband was cleaning, at their home in Spring street, Woodlawn, was accidentally discharged last night, Mrs. Florence Stretch, 27, the mother of four small children, died 15 minutes later.

Jesse C. Stretch, the husband, had gone into the yard to clean his gun, he said, and his wife had accompanied him. She was leaning over his shoulder watching when the gun was [illegible]tally fired. Stretch is em[illegible] as a pump foreman at the [illegible] & Laughlin steel plant in [illegible]awn.

Riot, Blast Insurance In Cities Mounts To Huge Sum

Universal Service Wire.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Activities of Sacco-Vanzetti partisans throughout the country have brought a sharp inquiry for explosion and riot and civil-commotion insurance. Total business written in this city has been estimated at $25,000,000, and about $100,000,000 more has been placed in Boston.

Owners of large hotels and office buildings seem particularly interested. A line of $3,000,000 has been placed on the Equitable Trust Company Building and coverage has also been provided for the Federal Reserve Bank Building. Insurance covering these hazards is in active demand in Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago and Baltimore, the risks covered including banks, industrial plants and department stores.

RUIN CLOTHING IN TRADE WAR

The destruction by acid of clothing valued at more than $1,000 at the plant of the Liberty Dyeing and Cleaning Company, 3801 Liberty avenue, is attributed to a trade war between rival business organizations, according to a report made to the city detective bureau.

William Fineberg, president of the company, told the detectives that the acid had been poured on the clothing while it was in a truck near the building. Detectives James Hoey and Frank Ferris were assigned to investigate.

FINED IN LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

Ralph H. Senn was fined $100 today by Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker for possessing and transporting two cases of whisky in Pittsburgh on May 13. Louis Kerenich, a former North Side saloonkeeper, was fined $75 for violating the prohibition law.

LUTHER LEAGUE ELECTS

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 11.—(AP.)—D. A. Kommell of Rochester, Pa., was re-elected president of the Luther League of Pennsylvania at sessions of the thirty-fourth annual convention yesterday. A banquet featured last night's sessions. Other officers chosen included John P. Kurzenknabe, Harrisburg, vice president; Mrs. Ralph Swavely, Reading, secretary; Miss Eva Savacool, Perkasie, assistant secretary, and S. Kinningerm, Wesleyville, treasurer. Charles W. Fuhr, Pittsburgh, spoke on "Our Juniors."

BOOTLEGGER'S $1,500 FINE REMITTED

Federal Judge F. P. Schoonmaker this morning signed an order remitting a $1,500 fine which had been imposed upon Milan Dechlich, a convicted Johnstown bootlegger, now serving a one-year sentence in the Somerset county jail. The order was signed upon the recommendation of Thomas J. Cavanaugh, former prohibition administrator, and United States Attorney John D. Meyer.

Dechlich was first sent to jail for the violation of an injunction in connection with the operation of a Johnstown brewery. He served a part of his sentence and was placed on a two-year parole. When he violated the parole he was sent back to jail and the fine imposed. Cavanaugh stated that Dechlich had supplied him with information which was valuable in making beer seizures.

SALLY SHOWS NEW DANCE

elements for her novel. According to Mark Twain and other noted literary folk, there are only 22 possible plots, and all of these were written before the mechanical age which is ours set in. In fact, most of them came almost at the beginning of civilization.

But what the noted serial authoress has done is to take characters of the American home and business office and life of today. She has painted them in their true colors; watch them live and act; heard their thoughts and portrayed their emotions. Miss Burton is writing of the things and people she knows and sees daily, and presenting her impressions in stirring form.

And that, according to the literary sages, is making literature.

Everywhere in Pittsburgh, on street corners and in offices, in homes and plants, "Sally's Shoulders" is being discussed. What thrills its plot will unfold, what characters its list includes, what new avenue to understanding friends, neighbors, associates, and perhaps, self, this novel will open?

These are a few of the questions being asked.

But another is—is it fresh and distinctive?

And the honest answer, which might easily be "yes," is to be found in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, where "Sally's Shoulders" first installment begins next Monday.

Watch for it.

REACH FOR $2 BRINGS DEATH

WHERE BODY WAS FOUND

Because he reached into the "pot" in a craps game to take $2 before he had won it, James Lawrence, Negro, 32, was killed in a quarrel which followed. The shooting took place in House 121, of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, Moon Run, early this morning. Ben Shafer, Negro, was arrested by S. A. Dale (standing in the photograph), coal and iron policeman, charged with the shooting.

derson, of the District Federal Court, and by Justice Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court.

The bill of exceptions recites Trial Judge Webster Thayer's adverse decision on motions for new trial, on revocation of sentence, on stay of execution, and also to his decision in refusing to withdraw voluntarily and permit another judge to hear the various motions.

The defense had asked Thayer to withdraw on the ground that his own alleged partiality was at issue. Reversal by the full court of Judge Sanderson's denial of the writ of error would open the way toward a new trial.

Vanzetti Breakfasts, Sacco Continues His Fast

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Bartolomeo Vanzetti awoke this morning with a more cheerful outlook on life. He drank the coffee brought him at breakfast and in other ways, according to prison officials, evidenced that he derived real hope from the respite. Nicola Sacco, however, remained apathetic and refused all food, for the twenty-fifth consecutive day.

The same act of clemency that granted to the two radicals 12 more days of life also extended to Celeste Madeiros, a convicted murderer who confessed to the Braintree holdup for which Sacco and Vanzetti were to be electrocuted. All three were to have died at midnight.

SACCO REMAINS STOLID

Word of the clemency was conveyed to the convicted men in the death house at grim old Charlestown prison only a half hour before they were due to begin the fearsome march to the chair. Only one, Vanzetti, the philosophical fish peddler, had any comment to make.

"I am glad," he said simply to Warden Hendry, who carried the message. "Now I will see my sister."

He referred to his sister who is making a life and death race from Italy to see him.

Sacco, weakened from his many days of hunger striking, had nothing to say. He has been indifferent to his fate four weeks, refusing even to sign legal papers by which his attorneys hoped yet to save him from the electric chair.

Madeiros, knowing that there was little hope for him anyway, was similarly silent. He has been convicted of one murder and confessed to another.

TIME FOR COURT ACTION

The official announcement from the Governor's office, a few minutes before midnight, simply stated that the respite had been granted because of the various legal moves that counsel for the condemned men have pending and plan to take within the next 10 days.

The ultimate fate of the condemned men appeared to be squarely up to the state courts, however, and not the Federal courts, for defense counsel unsuccessfully appealed to Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States Supreme Court and to Judge George W. Sanderson of the Circuit Court of Appeals for the First Judicial Circuit. They asked for a writ of habeas corpus, which was denied by both the justices.

The respite papers were delivered to the warden by Capt. Charles Beaupre, of the state police. He asked the warden for a receipt for the papers.

"I can't write it now because the typewriters are all locked up," said Warden Hendry.

"Then write a receipt in long hand," he was told. The warden complied, saying:

"Don't mind my handwriting for I am a little bit nervous."

The warden hasn't much taste for executions.

ARMED FORCES ON GUARD

Armed forces had been thrown about the prison, more than 700 Boston policemen and numerous state troopers being scattered about the outside of the walls.

When the reprieve was announced the armed forces began to melt away. They had little actual work to do, except to disperse one crowd of 2,000 persons which attempted to gather near the prison early. By midnight most of the guard had been withdrawn.

MANY WITNESSES GONE

Sacco and Vanzetti sympathizers were jubilant. There was a celebration at the headquarters of the defense committee. Friends were shouting their slogan of seven years: "Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die."

It has been six years since they were convicted. If they get a new trial it will be harder for the state to get witnesses than it will be for the defendants. Sacco and Vanzetti have a chance.

COP SHOOTS YOUTH, AIMED AT GROUNDHOG

DENNISON, O., Aug. 11.—Floyd Cottrell, 19, was shot in the left shoulder when Patrolman Orville Rea fired at a groundhog near Laceyville. The bullet glanced off a rock.

ADMITS KILLING BABY

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., Aug. 11.—(AP.)—In a 500-word statement signed last night in the presence of Walter V. Ross, Mercer county prosecuting attorney, Mrs. Erma Wheeler, 23, of Algonquin, confessed the slaying of her three-day old illegitimate child. "I'm sorry now I killed my little daughter, but I didn't have the money to provide for her," the confession read. She said she killed the infant by striking it in the head with a garden mattock.

BLAST SHATTERS SOUTH SIDE STORE

BLAST SCENE

INVESTIGATION STARTED BY FIRE MARSHAL

An explosion today badly wrecked the Smithfield Confectionery, 1 West Carson street, owned by F. J. Gallagher, 1633 Brownsville road, causing loss estimated at $2,000. Fire Marshal Thomas L. believed the blast caused by gas. Later, escaping gas overcame utility company workman repairing damage.

BEECHVIEW EMBEZZLERS SENT TO WORKHOUSE

"If there is any stern justice nowadays this case deserves stern justice," asserted Judge James H. Gray today in Criminal Court in imposing a sentence of five to six years in the County Workhouse upon C. F. Meeder, and a workhouse sentence of six months to two years upon Elmer Meeder, convicted about four months ago on charges of embezzlement and conspiracy in connection with the wrecking of the Beechview Building and Loan Association.

"The actions of defendants caused distress and grief to many innocent people in the building and loan association," Judge Gray declared, "and the sentence should show the condemnation of the law."

Stockholders of the association lost $94,000 through the practices of the Meeders, according to statements of Samuel Jackson, counsel for the State Banking Department, and John P. Volk, state bank examiner, who told of a parade of "straw men" recorded for loans passing from the association to C. F. Meeder, of over-appraised property, second mortgages which were really "fifth liens" and of $75,000 of obligations against property of the Meeders worth $55,000.

DRIVER JAILED AFTER AUTO STRIKES YOUTH

William Mitchell, 9, of 2415 Carson street, was injured when struck by an automobile late yesterday near his home. The driver, said to be Cornelius Ryan, 20, of 101 Poplar street, Mt. Brown, 55, 15 North Fremont avenue, Bellevue, vice president of the Oil Well Supply Company, posted $1,000 bail for his chauffeur, who is alleged to have been driving when the machine struck Marie Booker, 9, of 852 Behan street. Police say the driver failed to stop after the accident.

AIR ATTACK ON PRISON FEARED

By International News Service.

BOSTON, Aug. 11.—Police took precautions today to prevent the bombing of the Massachusetts state prison from airplanes by friends of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Anxiety of the police was aroused by news from Provincetown that three Liberty airplane motors had been stolen. A special guard was placed over Boston airport to prevent radicals from stealing airplanes.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Police vigilance against Sacco-Vanzetti violence was continued without the slightest relaxation today, despite the action of Gov. Fuller, of Massachusetts, in granting a 12-day reprieve to the condemned anarchists.

LAKE COAL SHIPMENTS HEAVIER DESPITE STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Despite the strike of union miners in the central bituminous field, more soft coal has been transported by water so far this year to Upper Great Lakes ports than in any corresponding period, the American Railway Association reported today. From January 1 to July 24, this year, 18,026,572 tons of bituminous coal were dumped into vessels at Lake Erie ports for shipment to Upper Lake ports. This exceeded by 2,293,485 tons the best previous record for that period, established in 1923, and also exceeded by 4,245,024 tons the amount dumped during the corresponding period last year.

Wholesale thefts of parcel post packages from trains were revealed here today by Postal Inspector George V. Craighead when he reported the arrest of William C. Grush, 30, of 19 Carrie street, baggage master on a Pittsburgh-to-Youngstown train of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie Railroad.

Grush was arrested in Youngstown as he completed his run and will be arraigned before the United States Commissioner in Youngstown.

The arrest followed a lengthy investigation conducted by Inspectors Craighead, Joseph R. Nolan and C. A. Callahan.

HONOLULU PLANE RACE POSTPONED

LAKE CARGO FIGHT IS REOPENED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Controversy over railroad rates on lake cargo coal has reached an acute phase in Interstate Commerce Commission procedure and a decision affecting the status of the new schedules is expected soon.

Northern coal operators in the Pennsylvania and Ohio territory were victors in the last stage of the contest, when they obtained from the commission a reduction of 20 cents a ton on rates on coal consigned to the Great Lakes for boat transport, but Southern railroads in assenting to the plea of Kentucky, West Virginia and Tennessee mine operators sought to nullify the Northern advantage by proposing a lake cargo rate cut from Southern territory equivalent to the rate cut awarded the Northern operators. The rates would be effective August 25 and have met with immediate resistance. While the commission does not ordinarily make public communications to it on the matter of rates awaiting adjudication, it was learned today that Pittsburgh producers, including mine operators in Pennsylvania and Ohio, had formally notified the commission that they considered the rate cut proposed by Southern carriers unlawful and as constituting a disregard of the commission decision ordering the Northern rates reduced.

First Girl Is Entered In Airplane Contest

Welcome, young women!

The first girl to enter the airplane model contest being conducted by the Bureau of Recreation and The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph was recorded today.

And more boys, fearful lest only playground youths can enter, may here take notice that there are no limitations. The only requirement for entering the contest, a part of the National Aircraft model contest, is to build or plan to build a plane and send in a filled entry blank to the Aircraft editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Boys who use the playgrounds, however, especially those in the bigger cities, may ask their directors if they are interested and if so, give the entry blanks to them. These will be forwarded to C. M. Batchelor, superintendent of the city Bureau of Recreation, one of the members in charge of the contest, or to this paper.

Planes should be built entirely by the boys, except in those instances where materials cannot be made. It is not necessary to follow any one model—or the one specified in the instruction on The Sun-Telegraph fiction page. Use your own ideas, if you can make them work efficiently.

Remember that the district championships, with medals and, if the national committee decides, a chance to go to Memphis in the national finals, will be decided August 24. The city championship with a big trophy to the winner will be held in Schenley Oval August 30.

Entry blanks should be in before next Monday. They are to be found in the Fiction section of this issue of The Sun-Telegraph.

MARTIN HITS AT SLATING OF JUDGES

Denouncing the action of the Republican organization in slating nine judicial candidates, Judge Richard W. Martin today declared "it is an amazing spectacle to see a small group of men, however capable we may assume them to be for the purpose of discussion, sitting in a room and naming nine judges for the great county of Allegheny."

This statement was made at the first noon meeting held in the Martin headquarters, 328 Fourth avenue. Judge Martin, an independent candidate for re-election, and former State Senator John S. Weiler were the speakers. Jacob Shulgold was chairman.

"No court of justice in this land should be made in any sense the adjunct of a political organization," said the candidate, "even the suspicion that it may become an agency of political power is enough to give us pause. The time-honored custom in Allegheny county has been to return to office a sitting judge whose record is good. Why that custom has been departed from this year is not for me to say. Is it because men are sought who will be more amenable to political influence in the various appointments which this court is called upon to make?"

DE VALERA FOLLOWERS TO SWEAR ALLEGIANCE

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—The executive committee of the Fianna Fail, the Republican party headed by Eamonn De Valera, last night unanimously decided that the forty-five members of the party who have been elected deputies to the Free State Parliament shall take the oath of allegiance to the British crown and assume their seats on Friday.

This sensational move by the Republicans is understood to have been brought about by fear that the Free State government's new public safety bill might destroy the Republican party.

Dear Papa: We Need Help! Writes Girl

HAVE you seen Margaret Seitz's father? His name is Alexander Otto Seitz, and Margaret has written to The Sun-Telegraph from Hartford, Conn., to find him so she and her two brothers will not have to go to an orphan home while their mother is in a hospital.

Read Margaret's letter below. She wants so much to find her father. He works as a commercial card designer and sign painter. Here is Margaret's letter:

Dear Papa:

We have no clothes to go out in. It is warm, so we don't get cold like winter. But I have no more dresses left, no underclothes nor stockings. My shoes are all worn out and so are Junior's and Theodore's. His toes are all out. Mamma has not enough money to buy food enough for us all. It is all she can do to pay the rent. The clothes you sent Theodore and Junior with the coat for me last November were fine, and helped keep us warm going to school. But they need underthings and pants and blouses, too, now everything we have is worn out.

Did you forget my birthday? And papa, you never gave us anything for Christmas. But perhaps you were sick and had no money, like mamma and Theodore. They were both in bed for Christmas and New Year's with the grip. We had no coal to keep warm till the Community Chest sent it for us.

We have two oil lamps and have no gas to cook on nor coal. So I go to the stores and they save me all their boxes and we burn them to cook our food.

Theodore used to sell papers, but he had to get up at 4:30 and had no rubbers nor good shoes most of the time. He got his feet wet and was very sick with the grip. After that he was not strong enough to work. We had no money for him for a doctor, only a city doctor. Mamma says she will have to put us all in the orphan home if we don't find you soon.

I hope you see this letter, dear papa, and send something for us, or that some one sees it and tells you about it. We have tried so hard to find you or get some word to you, but all the letters came back to us.

Mrs. S. told mamma to go to work and board us out. But she has been ill since last Christmas and is going to the hospital. She would work if she was stronger and well.

The shoes you sent were too small. Theo wears 6½ and Junior 2 and I wear 3½. You see, we all have grown big since you saw us last. I help mama do all the work. I wash, too. Mama is too sick to do anything.

Junior ran a rusty nail in his foot yesterday. Mama says that is just our luck. The school doctor says I need glasses very badly, my eyes hurt me.

I wish I had a doll like you used to buy me. I have not had one in a long time. I will close and hope God will help you see this letter so you can help. I send you all my love and kisses. Your loving little girl,

MARGARET.

SAVES TWO FROM FIRE DEATH

LOS ANGELES—Josephine Setrada, 11, is a heroine but she don't care for glory as much as for the joy of having saved the lives of her baby brother and sister when fire broke out in her home.

Josephine was in the yard playing when she saw smoke coming from the kitchen window and heard the screams of the younger children. She ran into the kitchen and succeeded in dragging her brother and sister to safety. In her attempt she received several burns about the arms and head of a slight nature.

The Setrada home was totally destroyed with a loss of [illegible] according to fire department reports. The fire spread to several adjacent residences but was extinguished before it got much headway.

Will Sees Success In Arms Parley Failure

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 11—Who said the disarmament conference was a failure? Didn't Mr. Coolidge yesterday issue orders to start in on a secret building program? There is some sense to a return from a conference and start building and not sinking. If that's a failure we can have a great navy some day just out of such failures. Good boy, Cal.

WILL.

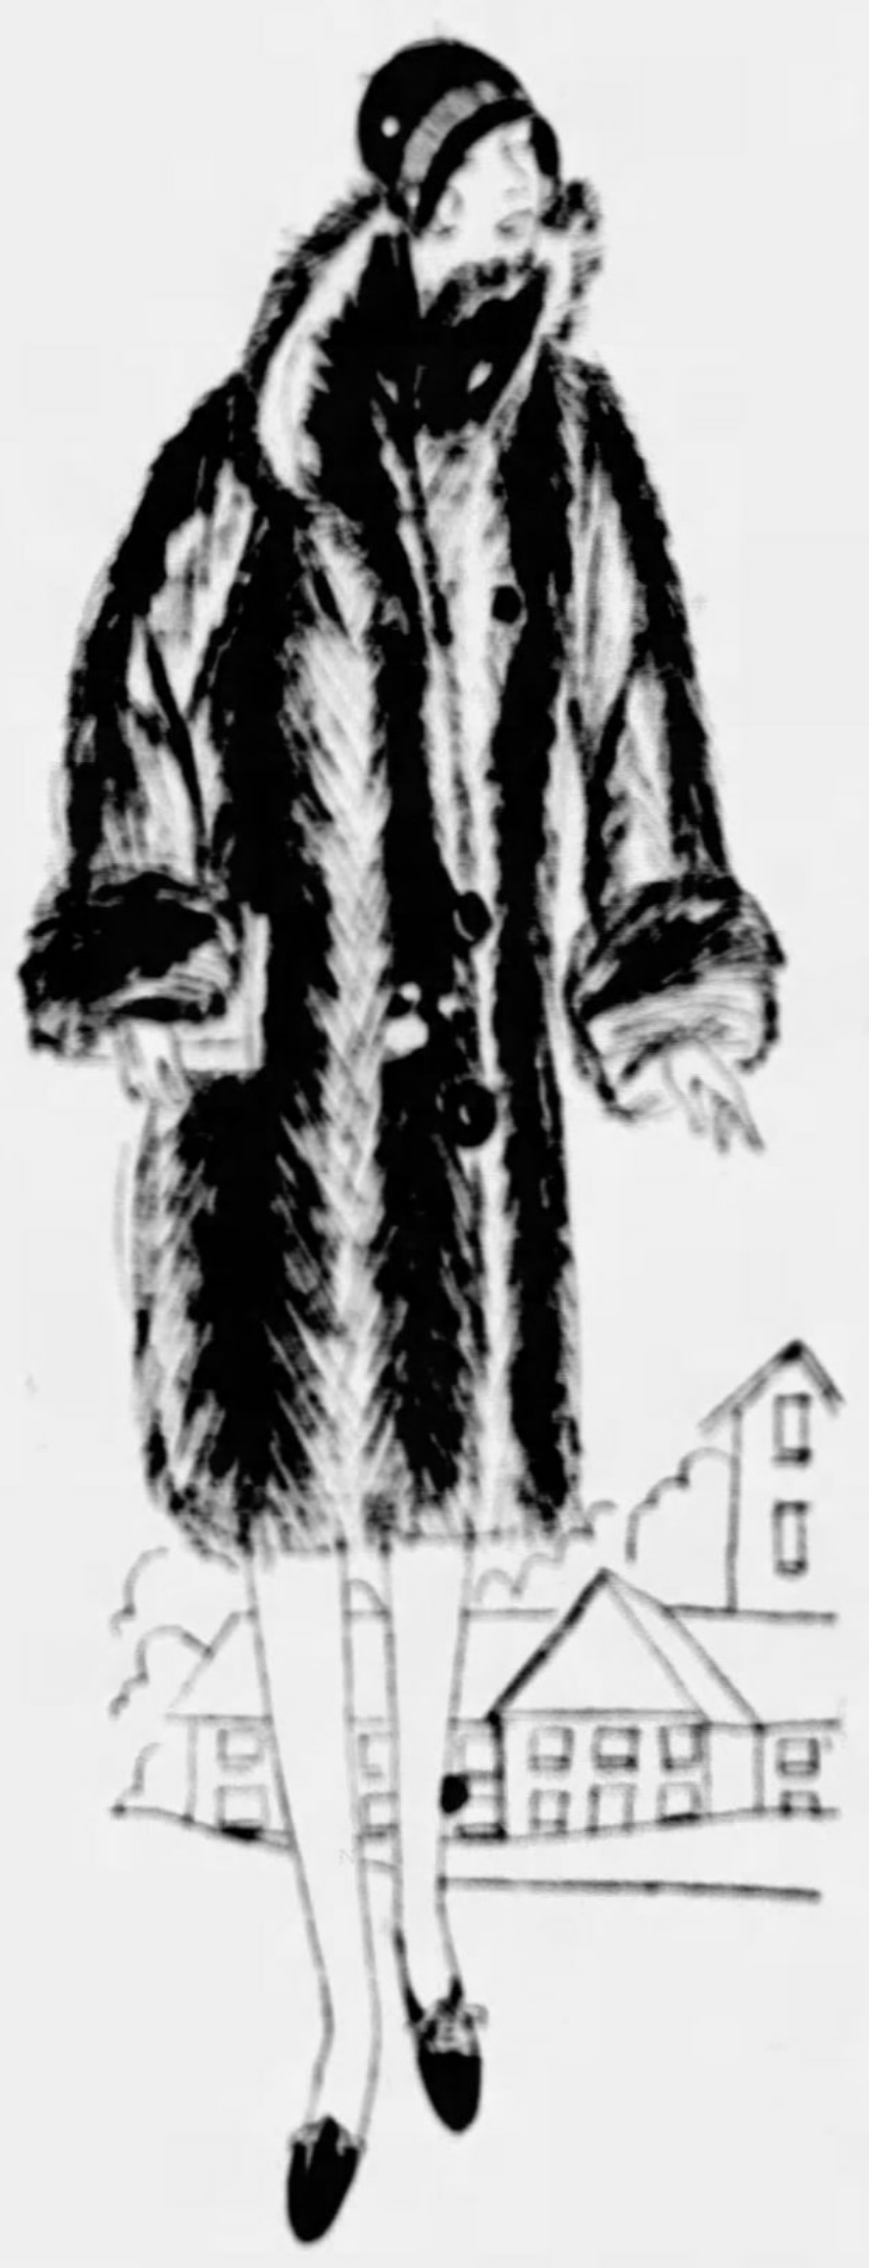
For College Girls—Swagger Raccoon Coats

in the August Sale



$385.00

Raccoon coats are variable, differing in the coloring of the skins, in their texture, in the way pelts are joined and matched, and in finishing details.

These coats, featured for tomorrow, are of clear, silver-toned raccoons, heavily furred, the skins scrupulously selected, and joined by highly skilled craftsmen.

The coats are lined at top with Skinner's satin, and from the waist down with smart wool plaid. There is choice of Queen Anne, crush or shawl collars.

For greatest satisfaction, see these coats tomorrow, at the beginning of this feature event of the August Sale.

Wear Weave Coats

In a Special Sale at

$55.00

Here is what a college girl says about these coats, which are advance models being sold at a very special price:

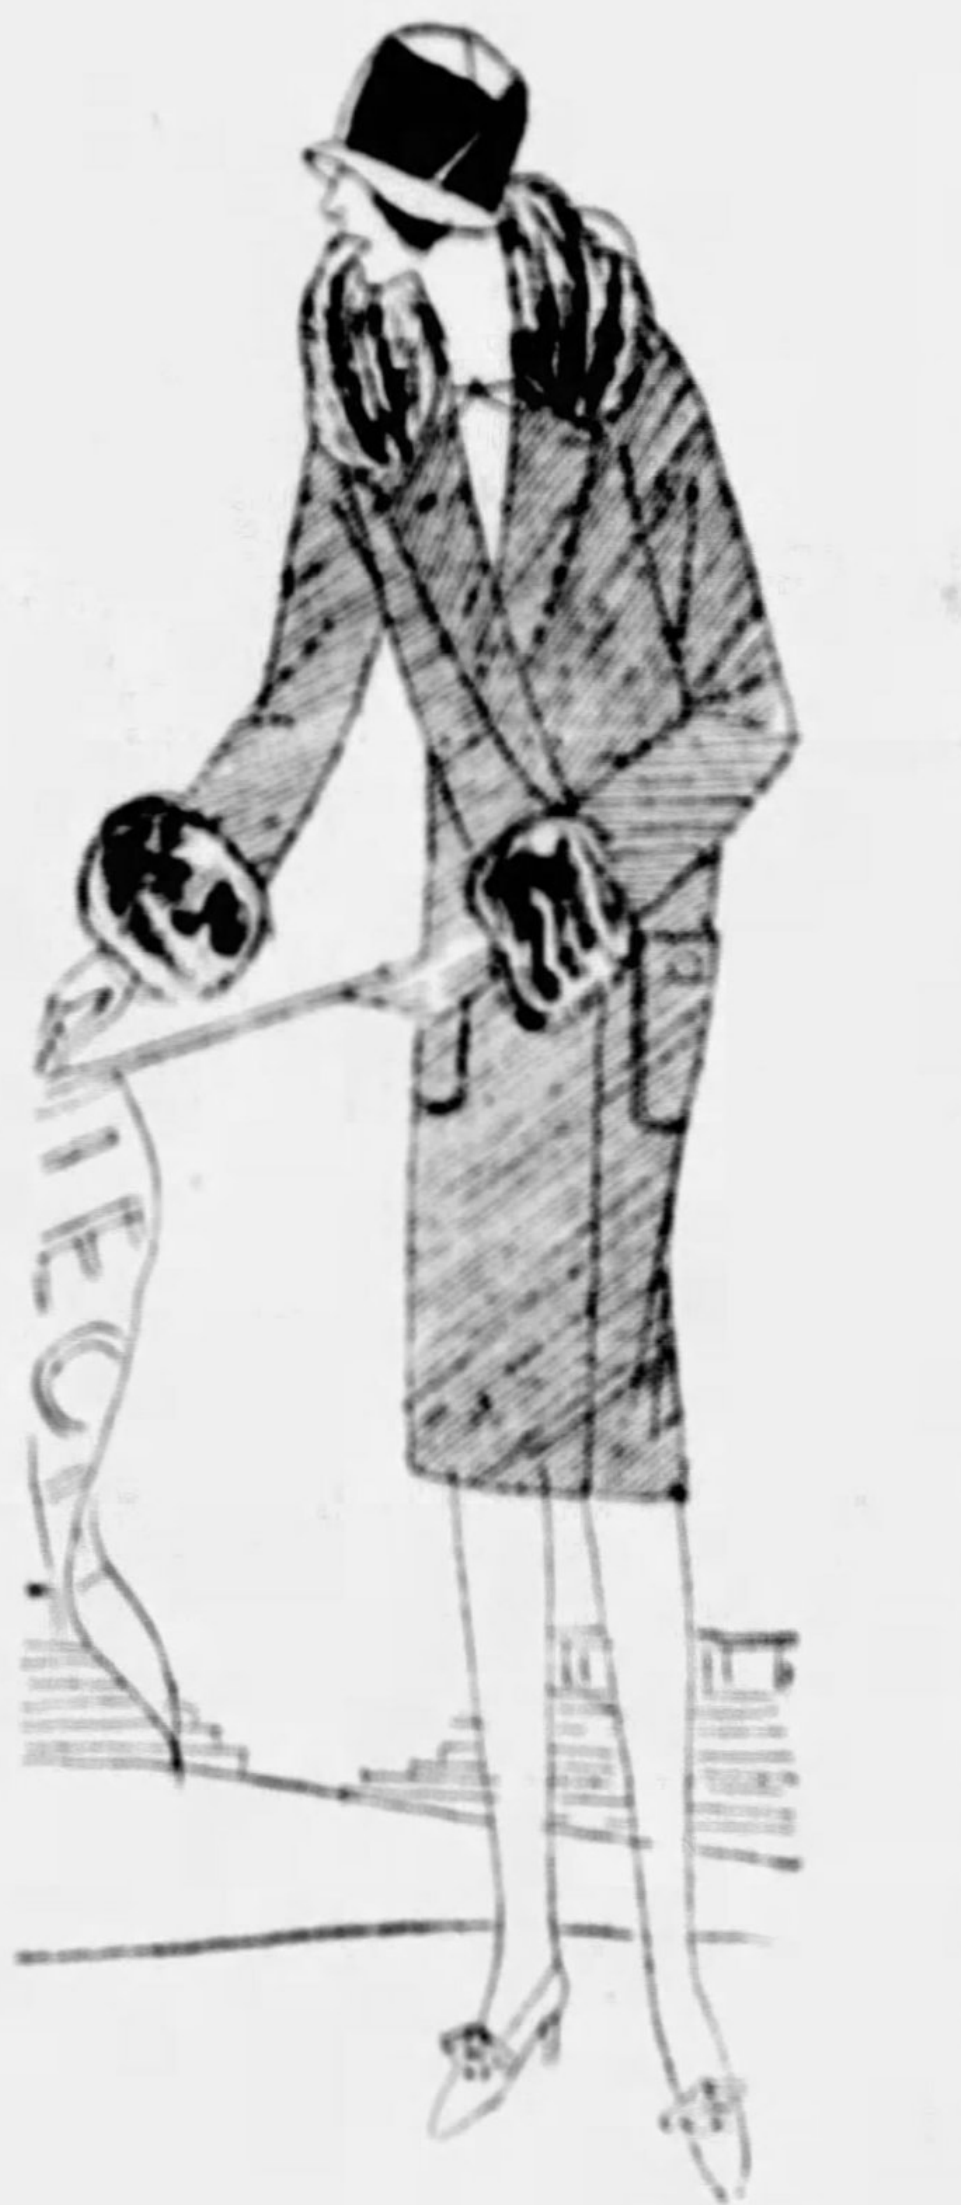
"Their cloths are light enough not to drag down the shoulders on a hike, and yet they would be warm enough to wear until the old muskrat begins to "look good" again or the weather furnishes an excuse to bring out the new raccoon or what have you—

"They won't show a soiled streak from having been sat upon at the football game—

"Pockets made to put hands into—

"And such fur trimmings! Fluffy furs for long-necked girls like me, and flat furs for short figures.

"Generous lap-overs at the front, so one's knees won't freeze in a roadster."



—Horne's, Second Floor—

The School Girl Chooses an "Exquisette"

—for an Exquisette is all she needs under the class room frock, you know. Just a bit of a pantie, all lace-edged, a vest accommodatingly scant, a brassiere comfortably reenforced, and a girdle that is hardly a girdle at all, so perfectly boneless is it—all in a single garment! And detachable hose supporters prove such a convenience in laundering!

The utterly feminine girl may prefer voile which is cool and yet "has the strength of brocade," as Vogue says. In such lovely two-tone combinations as peach and yellow—or nile and banana.

The sporting girl will probably choose hers in swami, so smooth and sleek with a silk jersey pantie bound in satin.

Sizes 32 to 38. Priced $5.00.

Advance fall models, many of them one-of-a-kind samples, have been secured at concessions that enable us to offer them at prices in many cases but fractions of the figures at which these garments would ordinarily sell.

There are pajamas in two and three-piece suits, breakfast coats, tea gowns, and negligees in elaborately designed or simply tailored models.

Pajamas, breakfast coats, and tea gowns are here in bewildering loveliness, no two alike. Negligees silk-lined throughout.

ALFHILD LARSON GOING TO ROOT FOR BUCS

By ALFHILD LARSON,
Pittsburgh's Fashion Queen.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 11.—The Garden Theater was such a popular place last night that they had to hang an S. R. O. sign outside the gates. It had been bought out by the Advertising Club and we had the largest crowd since the Style Show began. It was a perfect night and the moon and stars were glorious. You can't imagine how wonderful it is to sit out under the stars and watch a show being played in a natural setting of trees and flowers.

Yesterday afternoon we had luncheon at the Missouri Athletic Association and our hostess took us to a matinee afterward. The picture was sad and we all had the weeps and enjoyed ourselves thoroughly.

After the show we got weighed and I discovered I had gained two pounds. Horrors! Too much St. Louis hospitality and too many chicken dinners. This morning, just as soon as I finish this letter, I am going out for a long walk in Forest Park. I don't want to lose my chances of becoming National Queen of Fashion. And whoever heard of a fat lady making a success as a model.

This afternoon Miss Scarberry and I are going to the ball game to root for the Pirates. The other girls are going to another matinee. I have never seen a ball game in my life. My afternoons have been pretty much taken up with work. So I imagine this afternoon will be a red letter day in my career. Since I have started on this trip I have seen so many new things and had so many adventures it is a wonderful education.

There was no question about my receiving the most applause tonight again. One week from tonight we will know who is the winner. It will seem like an age until then. Here's hoping for the best.

TO FIRE MRS. TEACHER

"Gentlemen.
They call me Ponce de Leon at the golf club now. I saw your ad in Judge and it led me to the 'fountain'—Silver King Fizz.

"I ordered it on the 19th hole last Saturday. The boys went wild. Flasks appeared, and in 30 minutes the steward sold 28 bottles of Silver King Fizz.

"Words of praise? I'll say, plenty! It turns the best—???—into a nectar for the gods, and it transforms the common synthetic variety into a drink that is aged, mellow and smooth—like we old fellows were used to before the war.

RHEUMATISM

May be relieved by rational treatment—it can not be rubbed away.

Are you one of those unfortunates who suffer with pains in your muscles and joints, commonly called rheumatism, making you miserable, less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep?

You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in thousands of cases, as testified to in unsolicited letters of gratitude.

"I suffered from rheumatism for a good many years. At times my joints would swell so I couldn't walk. I tried almost everything. Went to Hot Springs . . . then finally decided to try S.S.S. I took a course. In a short time the rheumatic pains entirely left me. I am now in perfect health, and want to add that I have tried all kinds of medicines, but I think S.S.S. is the best." Earl C. Campbell, 115 West Main Street, Johnson City, Tenn.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

From youth to later years S.S.S. is a proven tonic—give it and take it where a tonic is indicated.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

"On to Reno" Title of First Cruze-De Mille Photoplay; Cullen Landis to Play Lead

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—James Cruze's first personally directed picture for Cecil De Mille is naturally a matter of interest and speculation. I believe I mentioned some weeks ago that Marie Prevost would star in the first Cruze De Mille opera. This isn't by way of bragging at all—but merely to state that my guess was correct.

Monday Mr. Cruze moves to the Metropolitan Studio to begin work on "On to Reno." Cullen Landis, who played his first important part in "The Fighting Coward," which Mr. Cruze has always believed is his best picture and which I have always maintained is one of his worst ones—will have the leading male role.

You might think that Jimmie Cruze, who made "The Covered Wagon," "Old Ironsides" and other of four more pretentious "album" dramas would choose something on this order for his first Metropolitan offering.

Have patience, dear friends. As soon as "On to Reno" is completed Jimmie will spend his time in research work for "The Pioneer Woman," another "Covered Wagon." Walter Woods also moves to Metropolitan as editorial supervisor.

"Come Over to My House." Yes, boys and girls, it's a movie title. Sounds innocuous enough, does it not? But they tell me it is a very risque comedy based on a magazine story, to be directed by Al Green for the Fox company. Olive Borden will be starred and work will be started very soon. I suppose, however, Al Green, who is an enthusiastic fight fan, will stall along until after the Dempsey-Tunney fight. It's terrible what this prize fight is doing to the film industry.

Doug's Leading Woman Ill But Film Work Goes Along

Lupe Velez, Douglas Fairbanks' leading woman in his latest picture, "The Gaucho," is seriously ill with peritonitis. She was stricken late last week when she had almost finished her role in the production. Two scenes calling for her appearance remain to be filmed. Until she recovers sufficiently to resume work, the company will go ahead with other scenes.

FILMS' 'TEX RICKARD' RETURNS TO MOVIES

Tom Gallery, who deserted the movies to promote prize fights, has returned to his first love. Mr. Gallery, aside from being the husband of Zasu Pitts, is well known himself in the silent drama. He played a part in Monte Blue's last picture "One-Round Hogan," and, after his experience promoting fights, was right in his element. Now he has been added to the cast of Rin-Tin-Tin's picture "Dog of the Regiment." Ross Lederman is the director.

Is there a Sally "batting in the pinch" in your game of life; in your home? There's a jewel in the Jerome household, in which is laid the newest serial of Beatrice Burton, "Sally's Shoulders." Watch for it next Monday.

BOOKING FOR NIXON IS "OLD IRONSIDES"

"Old Ironsides," James Cruze's Paramount production, has its premiere Monday evening, August 15, in the Nixon. Elaborate plans have been made for the opening presentation of the picture, which is said to be one of the finest yet made.

Much of the emotional power of the play, "My Son," which will be presented in the Pitt Theater next week, is due to the colorful picture it presents of the Portuguese community on Cape Cod.

"Stepping Along," a musical act with seven juveniles participating in comedy, song and dance will top the vaudeville in the Harris next week. Other attractions include Captain Betts' seals and simian actors.

Next week in the Sheridan Square the vaudeville will include the Libby Dancers in "Sports A La Mode," Nilly Farrell and Company in "Home, Sweet Home," Patrick and Otto, "The Duck Hunters," Strains and Strings, Fred Stanley & Co., and other acts.

Oriental Eyes ⁖ As He Really Is ⁖ Our Own Tom ⁖ Who's Sorry?

OF ANNA MAY WONG orientalize such parts of movies as may be necessary. Just now they are doing it in Gilda Gray's "The Devil Dancer." Anna May is a Chinese girl born in America. Flapperish as they make 'em, too.

WE DON'T BLAME YOU if you think Lon Chaney is the name of a frog or a fence post or something, but there really is a man of that name and this is his picture. He is getting himself ready to make "The Ordeal."

ONE ACTOR PITTSBURGH is proud of is Thomas Meighan, who began his career here as a stock actor, you may remember. He is at work now on "We're All Gamblers."

THE ANSWER TO THAT is "nobody is sorry." The not-so-hard-to-look-at lady, if you really have to be told, is Alice Calhoun. She has been out of pictures for a while, but is coming back. Now your whole day has been brightened.

European Films Face "Foreign Invasion" Bugaboo

European motion picture producers have their own "foreign invasion" bugaboo to worry about.

"The Last Waltz," the UFA picture that is soon to be released in America after its Berlin studio screening, is believed to have one of the most cosmopolitan casts on record.

The director, Arthur Robison, was born in Chicago but has lived in Germany since he was 6 years old. He speaks English, French and German fluently. The leading woman, Suzy Vernon, is a French girl with Spanish antecedents; the second leading lady is Austrian. The other members of the cast include Russian, Polish, Italian, Swedish and Danish actors and actresses. The manuscript was written by the director and an American, Alice Miller.

And the exteriors of the picture were made in Switzerland.

Fields in Chaplin Role With New Version Of "Tillie"

You wouldn't think there was very much resemblance between Charlie Chaplin and W. C. Fields, now would you? None in the world. Yet, Mr. Fields has been chosen to play the role in "Tillie's Punctured Romance," that helped boost Charlie to comedy fame. That proves, I suppose, that the new version of "Tillie" will be independent and not try to borrow any of the old "gags." Chester Conklin, with whom Mr. Fields is to be associated as a starring partner, has also been signed as one of the important characters. The part of the vamp, played by Mabel Normand with such hilarious success, will be given to Louise Brooks, while Louise Fazenda draws Tillie. Apparently the Christie Brothers are not leaving any stone unturned to make this the epitome of screen nonsense. They signed Louise Fazenda some weeks ago for the part created by the inimitable Marie Dressler, and now comes the final word that Eddie Sutherland has been borrowed from Famous Players-Lasky to do the megaphone honors.

MUNICH WILD ABOUT ANCIENT DEAN FILM

Munich may be the last word in music, but it is certainly not up to date in its movies. A letter received from a tourist, who is attending the musical festival there, says that Munich has gone wild over "The Virgin of Stamboul," with Priscilla Dean. This picture was produced at least six years ago, and, in its way, did very well, but today it would not rank with the more recent American made pictures. Probably Priscilla Dean's popularity is helping make it such a success.

FRECKLES GIVE PLAYER START IN FILM CAREER

Joan Standing got her start in pictures because she had a wealth of freckles on her face. And for that same reason she was cast as Maudie in the screen adaptation of "Beau Sabreur," by Percival C. Wren.

$50,000 NOTRE DAME FARM FIRE LAID TO INCENDIARY

PRIZE HORSES AND CATTLE IN DANGER

International News Service Wire.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Aug. 11.—Two buildings housing Notre Dame University's agricultural equipment and stock on a little farm here were in ruins today after a fire of mysterious origin.

Thousands of dollars worth of valuable horses and cattle were imperiled by the blaze. Nine prize horses were burned to death before they could be removed from the doomed structure.

Albert Luke, 76, [illegible] a caretaker suffered a broken leg in his efforts to rescue some of the stock.

Cause of the fire, undetermined, is thought to have been incendiary. Authorities scouted the idea it might have been started by local Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers.

Chemical trucks from the South Bend fire department were sent to the farm. The damage was estimated at more than $50,000.

DEMOCRAT QUITS STATE POST

By International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 11.—With the resignation of Albert H. Ladner, Jr., as a member of the Philadelphia Registration Commission on the Governor's desk today, litigation looking toward court action to compel Ladner to prove his political affiliations was expected to end.

Ladner's resignation came last night after Attorney General Thomas J. Baldrige announced the commonwealth would participate in quo warranto action brought by a group of Philadelphia Democrats to have Ladner prove he is a Democrat, under which standard he was named to the commission by Gov. John S. Fisher.

Ladner stressed the point in his written resignation that he had not solicited the appointment, and said he took it at a personal sacrifice to his profession.

15 Injured In Bomb Blast

BERNE, SWITZERLAND, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—The city of Basle was aroused today over the explosion of a bomb in a telephone booth at the street car station in the Barfuesserplatz late last night, which injured 15 persons, one of them gravely. Two of the injured are women.

Thus far the police have no clue to the authors of the outrage, but they believe it was intended as a protest against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti. The station is a mass of ruins.

Earlier in the day there had been an hour's strike of Basle workers out of sympathy with Sacco and Vanzetti.

KEEPS SON AFTER TWO MONTHS' CHASE

ERIE, Aug. 11.—Reuben W. Carlton, Erie, is on his way home from Manchester, N. H., with his six-year-old son, Paul, following a two months' search of New Hampshire and Vermont for his divorced wife, who is married again, and who fled to prevent Carlton having custody of his son for two months in each year, as ordered by the courts. The chase was marked by a wild midnight ride of Carlton when his former wife fled from Manchester to Norwich, Vermont, in an effort to keep the child in her custody.

ACTRESS SHOT TO HALT MATE'S DIVORCE PLEA

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11.—Ill in the county jail, Irene Presniakoff, known in films as Irene Preston, declared her plight was due to the desire of her husband, Igor Presniakoff, to divorce her to marry "a rich woman."

The actress is charged with shooting her husband in the arm. Mrs. Presniakoff declared she and her husband, a former Russian army officer, had undergone many vicissitudes in the Russian revolution. When she found him ragged and hungry, she supplied him with food and clothing, she said, and he promised to marry her. This promise, according to her story, was fulfilled in Shanghai.

Mrs. Presniakoff, who was taken ill in jail, was released on her promise to appear when her case is called a week hence.

Here's The Way
To Clear "Off-Color" Teeth
That Foremost Dentists Advise
Please Accept 10-Day Tube and Make This Remarkable Dental Test

NOW dull, dingy, "off-color" teeth are restored to dazzling whiteness in a new way. Ugly teeth soon will disappear.

Famous movie stars use this way before going on a scene. That's why movie smiles glisten so. Leading dentists urge it widely. For it protects the teeth and firms tender gums.

It works by removing a dingy film that forms on your teeth, and dulls them by absorbing discolorations from food, smoking, etc. A slippery film you can feel with your tongue; and that invites germ growth, decayed teeth and gum troubles.

Old-type dentifrices failed to remove it successfully. That's why brushing thus far failed you.

Beneath it are the teeth you envy in others. Remove it, for your own sake. One's whole appearance changes as clear, white teeth come.

The name is Pepsodent. Thousands now employ it. We'll send you a tube to try. Or get large tube for a few cents at your druggist.

Diagram of filter showing how Tiolene is purified by filtration.

Repeated Filtration Purifies Tiolene

TIOLENE is purified by the costly but safe method of filtering, time and again, through Fuller's Earth. This removes the free carbon and other impurities.

And the wholesome color of Tiolene is natural. It is made from Cabin Creek crude which, unlike other crudes, is a clear amber color just as it flows from the ground. Tiolene, therefore, does not have to be "bleached" by acid treatment, so there is no chance of it containing any metal-corroding acid.

The most expert refining, preserves in Tiolene all of the supreme lubricating qualities of Cabin Creek, Super-Pennsylvania crude. Cabin Creek crude is the highest grade petroleum found on this continent and regularly commands a premium over other Pennsylvania grade crudes.

The finished Tiolene is 100% Super-Pennsylvania Motor Oil. Because of its remarkable resistance to heat, wear and dilution, it will give you more miles of safe lubrication per fill.

ITALIAN DECRIES TURKS' POWER

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 11—(AP)—Diplomatic blunders in Paris by Allied statesmen after the end of the World War allowed the triumphant re-entry of Turkey into European affairs and the consequent loss of prestige by Western Europe in the East, Count Carlo Sforza, Italian diplomat, said in an address at the Institute of Politics in session here.

Count Sforza was sent by the Italian government after the war as Italian high commissioner to Turkey. The result of four years of blunders, illusions and extensive pretentions was, in short, the complete return of the Turk into Europe. The treaty of Lausanne only served to accentuate the end of all European privileges.

Count Sforza said that it was still possible to re-establish European influence in the East, although it will be a difficult problem and not one of force.

ENGLISH BALK, U. S. FAILS TO GET RACE POSTPONED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Faced with the intimations by Great Britain that she would withdraw from the Schneider international seaplane races at Venice September 25 if the event is postponed, the National Aeronautical Association has announced that it would abandon its efforts for postponement. A month's postponement was desired to assure participation of the American entrant, Lieut. A. J. Williams, who has been delayed by trouble with his pontoons and a damaged propeller.

Following the verdict, Mrs. Waite was released at once. She will be deported, however, to the United States and will leave from Southampton tomorrow on the President Roosevelt.

RIDE THE TROLLEYS

—for safety
—for speed
—for convenience
—for traffic relief
—for comfort

EIGHTEEN minutes is the scheduled run from the Schenley section to the center of the downtown district by any Forbes street or Fifth avenue trolley. Just thirty minutes is the scheduled length of run for the East Liberty-Downtown cars.

¶ Sometimes it is very difficult to adhere strictly to schedule. Then, generally the blame is traced to traffic jams, caused by the slower moving vehicles, accidents on the highways and storms or other factors beyond our control.

¶ As a factor in traffic relief, the street car has long been recognized as the most practical way of lessening congestion. For although more than half the people in the Triangle are brought by trolley, this conveyance makes up only about nine percent of the number of vehicles entering and leaving the Triangle.

Child-birth

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers!

When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Hartman, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used 'Mother's Friend' and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes." Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA 46, Atlanta, Ga., for a free illustrated book containing information every expectant mother should have. "Mother's Friend" is sold by all drug stores—everywhere.

Why Kaufmann's Furniture Leadership Means Average "Lowest-in-City" Prices

Our claim of "lowest-in-the-city prices" on furniture is based on the following policy:

1. No department-wide sales, with their reductions on all furniture and subsequent higher prices necessary to make up such losses.
2. A lower original mark-up than other stores holding sales can afford to make.
3. Quantity buying, which gives us larger trade discounts.
4. Ordering much of our furniture constructed to our own specifications to make sure that our quality is above the average at the price.
5. Constant checking of prices by our staff to make certain that our prices are kept the lowest.

The Fascinating Love Story of a Girl of the Present Day

Lorna Throws a Party and Lays Trap for Betty To Rewin Lorrimer

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Pretty black-haired Betty Warren is engaged to Bob Stevenson. Betty lives with her mother and two sisters in Brooklyn and works as a typist in New York City. On Sunday the whole Warren family assembles for dinner, Helen, the 16-year-old beauty of the family; Gladys, the artistic dreamer; Mrs. Warren, motherly and impractical; Betty's married sister, Virginia, with her little boy, Junior, and her husband, Jim, who was gassed in the war. Jim goes away for his health. Betty is acquainted with a wealthy author, Anson Lorrimer, who invites Betty to lunch and she accepts. Lorrimer calls at Betty's home and meets Bob, who forms a dislike for him. Betty and Bob quarrel. Lorrimer gets Betty a better job in an office where Harry Martin is employed. Lorrimer entertains lavishly, but his pursuit of Betty is discreet for a time. Then he lures her to his apartment. She is struggling with him when Harry Martin appears. Helen has gone into the movies, and meets Lorna May, an old flame of Lorrimer, who fears and hates Betty.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

LORNA realized she had no rival in Helen. But she was determined to win back Lorrimer. Observing Lessways' interest in Helen' she played up to the young girl.

She asked Helen to come home with her to have tea and to talk. Lorna's beautiful car took them over to the immense Park avenue apartment.

People began dropping in almost before Helen had her hat and coat off. Tea consisted of cocktail shakers holding about three quarts each and liquor bottles and decanters and syphons in shining array.

A Japanese waiter, observing that Helen drank nothing, procured tea for her. This amused the crowd.

Helen wished herself home, and was extremely glad to see Peter Lessways enter.

"Hello, what are you doing here?" he asked.

"Well—I came—just to see—"

"How do you like the gang?" he inquired.

"I don't. Not at all. I'd like to go home."

"And you shall."

A little later Lessways drove Helen home. Their departure together was a signal for exclamation, insinuation, laughter and envy.

He came into the house with her to renew, he said, his friendship with Betty. "I'll keep an eye on Helen and I am sure that she is sensible enough to see how little worth while people of the sort are," he said of the party.

Lorna meantime had made up her mind to meet Betty. She decided to throw a really good party. It was to be for the more important members of the cast. To make sure of Helen she would have Lessways. Arthur Lorrimer, of course. How to get Betty was the problem.

When Helen got her invitation she told Lorna it would be impossible for her to go. "But, my dear," protested Lorna, "it will help you so much in the pictures to meet these people. You need the advertising."

"But I can't come, at least not without a chaperone."

"Haven't you sisters?"

"Yes. There's my sister Betty," she began tentatively.

"The very one," cried Lorna.

In this way Betty received an invitation.

The night came. She and Helen arrived at the apartment a little after 10.

Helen looked so lovely that Betty was almost afraid. Betty was charming in a straight silver gown, which had been Helen's present to her.

Lorna was affable in the extreme to Betty as she welcomed her. And the minute she saw her she hated her. She knew her own danger as she had not known or realized it before. She had—although Lorna refused to admit it ever to herself—a fine self-respect and a sense of value . . . and . . . virtue.

Lorrimer came up. The minute Lorna saw his eyes, the eyes which immediately sought Betty's, she knew she had never had any opportunity of reclaiming him from this "little outsider." Lorna had vitriol-throwing instincts and they all rose up within her at that moment. If only—if only—she could, in some way, "queer" Betty with Lorrimer, and forever.

Lessways wandered in and stood watching the dancing. Lorrimer crossed the room to him.

"The hit of the evening seems to be the Warren sisters," Lessways observed.

"Yes—Helen is certainly turning into a beauty," Lorrimer said easily. "They are both attractive girls, and they are both little gold-diggers—respectable, and all that, but out for what they can get."

Lessways, longing to kick his relative, refrained.

"I like gold-diggers," he laughed. "They know their way about. And I give you fair warning that in a couple of years I'll be ready to take a serious and important interest in the younger of these two."

Lorrimer was uneasy. This meant one more person—and a very important one—taking an interest in the entire Warren family.

After watching the dancing, Lorrimer cut in on Betty, Lessways on Helen. "Peter Lessways is mad about Helen," Lorrimer told Betty.

"Don't be ridiculous; she's only a child," she answered. She trusted Lessways. So she said,

Florida's Rum Row Doomed

U. S. PLANS TO BLOCKADE SHIPMENTS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The Federal government is planning a drastic drive to wipe out rum running off the Florida coast. A blockade comparable in extent to that utilized in breaking up Rum Row off New York and Boston two years ago is under consideration.

The Treasury's effort is principally directed at stoppage of rum smuggling from the West Indies during the fall and early winter when supplies for the winter colonies at Florida watering places are usually gathered.

Faced with a new type of rum-runner who utilizes fast and heavily armed speed boats in addition to airplanes, government officials declare they will have to adopt drastic measures to cope with the problem.

Ordinary smugglers and bootleggers have deserted the Florida rum business and in their place is an organization of desperate criminals and gunmen, lured from other branches of crime by the promise of more liberal returns promised in this illicit trade, officials point out.

Killing of one enforcement agent and a Secret Service operative by rum smugglers last week near Fort Lauderdale, Fla., has intensified the Treasury's determination to wipe out the Florida liquor trade, it was stated.

ALIEN ROUNDUP PLAN GOES TO COOLIDGE

By ARTHUR HACHTEN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Steps have been taken by Secretary of Labor Davis for a nation-wide roundup of alien Anarchists and other undesirables illegally in this country.

He has issued an appeal to business establishments, especially large industrial plants employing common labor, to co-operate in the drive to rid the country of unwelcome aliens. Factories were asked to make a thorough check of employes and to make citizenship or legal entry into the country a requisite to employment.

Secretary Davis left here yesterday on a Western trip. He will confer with President Coolidge at Rapid City, where he will lay his plans before the President.

Hundreds of thousands of aliens are known to be in the United States illegally. In this army, Secretary Davis said, are undoubtedly many with political views at variance with American institutions. Thousands slip into the country through "bootleg" channels, he admitted, despite vigilance of the immigration service.

Organized bands of alien smugglers are often discovered by Labor Department officials. Thousands of aliens find their ways into this country through Mexico and Canada.

That the movement to require all aliens to register has gained momentum through the Sacco-Vanzetti uprisings was believed evident in congressional circles. Davis supported the plan several years ago, but abandoned it in the face of congressional opposition.

PULCHRITUDE PRIZE

Girl Bank Clerk Held On Blackmail Charge

RIDGEWOOD, N. J., Aug. 11.—(AP.)—An attractive 21-year-old bank clerk, whose reputation was unblemished in the community, was held under $5,000 bail today, accused of blackmailing Mrs. F. A. Von Moschzisker, leader of Ridgewood's social set and wife of a prominent New York attorney.

The clerk, Miss Sarah Mewell, is charged with sending during the last year a number of threatening letters demanding payment of $40,000 from Mrs. von Moschzisker.

One letter made public by Prosecutor A. C. Hart accused Mrs. von Moschzisker of "trying hard to get me in bad with the bank" and threatened that blackmail letters would be written to "prominent people" on Mrs. von Moschzisker's monogrammed stationary unless $20,000 each was paid to a certain "Miss —— and Mr. ——."

"You will never convince a jury that you hadn't written them," the letter read, "when it's your own paper. You ought to get about five years. Ha, ha."

The prosecutor said that investigations by handwriting and finger-print experts convinced him that the letters were written by the young woman.

QUICKSANDS OF LOVE

A New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

EVEN though I knew that Dick's pique at my not awakening when he spoke to me upon his departure after breakfast was responsible for his studied avoidance of a personal good-by to me over the telephone, yet my resentment could not help seizing upon Edith Fairfax as a whipping boy, but one—alas! for the feeding of my grudge—whom I could not chastise.

Dicky had made hurried trips out of town many times before, but very rarely did he fail to tell me himself of his plans and ask for the bag which I always kept ready packed for his hurried journeys. It would have taken less than one minute of his time to speak to me after Edith had summoned me to the telephone, and I knew that the slight had been deliberate, all the more humiliating to me because Edith had been a witness of it—and I guessed a jubilant one.

But there was nothing I could do save get the bag ready as he had asked, and when I had given it to Katie with the necessary directions, I plunged into my work with the knowledge that my resentment was less disturbing than my remorse over failing to detect Dicky's illness, an emotion, incidentally, which the consciousness of my husband's deliberate slight was fast banishing.

There was no time, however, for either introspection or retrospec[illegible]e days which followed [illegible]parture. I worked fever[illegible]r my tasks for Philip [illegible]n order to have all the time possible for my father, who also arranged his hours of preparation for his voyage so that he might match every hour of my leisure with one of his own.

So absorbed was I, indeed, that it was not until the very day of Lillian's dinner, ostensibly in honor of my father, but in reality to bring young Noel Veritzen into Mary Harrison's life, that I remembered to tell my husband's young niece of the evening's engagement, guarding my speech from any slip which could apprise her of Noel's expected appearance. While she never had seen Philip Veritzen's attractive young son, I knew that she had been prejudiced against him by the cleverly woven tissue of lies and truth which Jack Leslie, "the capering cock-roach" of Dicky's opprobrium, and young Veritzen's bitter enemy, had told her. I did not wish her to guess that he was to be at the dinner for fear that she would not wish to go. But I found, upon mentioning the dinner, that she was not as enthusiastic as I had expected her to be over anything which would break the monotony of her routine of work and meals and sleep.

"It would be lovely," she said, in the perfunctory tone with which one greets a proffered pleasure, "but honestly, Auntie Madge, I'm so tired all the time—I guess it's the spring—that I think I'd rather go to sleep."

"Nonsense!" I said briskly. "It's all work and no play which makes Mary not a dull girl, but a sleepy one. It will do you good to get away from your routine even for a few hours. Mrs. Underwood set it on Friday night purposely because you had no work on that night which could not be done on Saturday. And I'll promise to have you back home by 10 o'clock, so that your conscience will be clear upon that agreement with Mr. Veritzen."

The quick color flashed into her cheeks and something odd, inscrutable peeped out of her eyes.

"I'm not worrying about that," she said. "I know you'll be responsible to him for my time if you take me out. It's just that I felt so tired. But I think you're right and it would do me good. I'll be very glad to go. What shall I wear?"

FOR THE LOVELORN .·. .·. .·. By ELEANOR GALE

Blue Eyes.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a girl of 19 and I am not allowed to have either boy or girl friends visit at my home. I find it very hard to convince my father that I ought to have friends. When I ask his permission to go anywhere I am usually told to stay at home and help my mother. Then he always manages to find something for me to do. Mother's attitude is just the very opposite from father's. It's quite hard, therefore, to keep peace in the family. I am very lonesome and would like to have friends. What shall I do?

BLUE EYES.

I can appreciate the difficulty of your situation. Perhaps your father thinks your friends unworthy, because he has never met them. Suggest to him that he permit you to invite them just once, and that you are willing to for him to pass judgment upon them. Point out to him also that you must have friends—of both sexes—if you are to lead a happy, wholesome existence. Surely he should be able to see that it is better for you to have your friends at your home than to force you to see them surreptitiously.

Mrs. M'K.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a young woman and have been married four years, but it seems the longer I live with my husband the worse he treats me. He makes a good salary, but he gives me only enough to pay our bills each week and perhaps a dollar or two for my own use. The rest of his money he spends on himself. I stay at home all the time except when I go to town on business. I don't care anything about shows or parties, but sometimes I wish my husband to go, but he makes a fuss when I even mention this. I can't stand it any longer. My parents are living and would take care of me. So I want to know if it would be best for me to get a job or try to live with him. I love my husband and would like to live with him, but I don't think I can do it any longer. Can you help me?

MRS. M'K.

I can only urge upon you the old advice, "Try, try again." The first years of married life are often years of adjustment. Perhaps during the coming year you and your husband may reach a compromise toward which you have been working through a period of apparent discord. You love your husband and it should be worth a little effort on your part to keep him. Try to make your home as attractive and cheerful as possible. If you surround yourself with interesting friends you will soon find that he will prefer to spend his evenings at home. Has it occurred to you that your husband may be leaving you home alone night after night because he does not find his home attractive?

Puzzled Greatly.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a young man of 17 and keenly interested in a girl who attends the same school that I do. I have taken her out several times, and have had her at my home. I own a car; we both dance and both are quite popular, but in spite of all my attentions and courtesies she seems only mildly interested. Yet, she seems to be very interesting and sociable while out with other fellows. Can you suggest some plan whereby I can win her interest and admiration?

PUZZLED GREATLY.

Apparently she is sufficiently interested to go out with you frequently. Apparently you are real friends. And really, you are too young to worry about much else. After all, there is nothing finer than a companionship that is based upon compatibility. Make the most of it. Perhaps, at some time, she will show the interest you seek.

Annoyed.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am extremely in love with a girl who is just a few weeks my junior. She has also confessed her love to me, and it is an understanding between us that we are lovers. She received a letter a few days ago from a young man who desired her friendship. Should she not tell me who the young man is, and show me his letter, considering I am her lover?

ANNOYED.

Since you are not engaged to marry this young lady you have no right to inquire into every affair of hers, my friend. It is her privilege to correspond with other friends and to go about with them, just as it is yours to see other girls. There will be plenty of time for both of you to limit your friendships when you are engaged.

Blue-Eyed Betty.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a girl in my early teens. My mother will not let me go out at night. She will not let me go to the theater with my girl friends. She always makes me go with her.

Several young men have asked me for "dates," but my mother will not let me go with them.

Please tell me how I may persuade my mother to give me some freedom.

BLUE-EYED BETTY.

Don't you realize that you are still very young and that your mother is the best judge of what is good for you? She is concerned only with your welfare. And she thinks that you have loads of time in which to grow up. Devote yourself to your studies and to sports. Forget about boys except as occasional playmates.

Doubtful.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a boy in my late teens. I am very interested in a certain girl, and I think she is interested in me. I have never spoken to her. Would it be proper to approach her when she is accompanied by a girl friend?

DOUBTFUL.

If you have never met this girl it is outside the bounds of convention for you to speak to her, my friend. But certainly there must be some way of arranging an introduction. If you see her frequently probably you have a mutual acquaintance and you can ask him to present you. Then you can "state your case." But not before!

Worried Blue Eyes.

Dear Miss Gale:

I am a young girl in my teens. Last summer I met a young man two years my senior and we took quite a fancy to each other.

I cannot understand why he should tell my friends of his affection for me and not tell me. Can I tell him I care for him or wait until he tells me?

WORRIED BLUE EYES.

You must be patient. The young man will tell you of his affection in due time. Under no circumstances make any declaration of your own affections until he has told you of his.

My Son's Sweethearts By IDA McG. GIBSON.

HE FELT very weak and cursed himself for it. There was a sickly, sweetish taste in his mouth.

He pressed his handkerchief to his mouth and it came away flecked with bright pink. "Damn that old wound," he said, as he wiped his lips.

At the sight of the blood on his handkerchief, Phil shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, go to hell with it. What's the use of worrying anyway. If I'm going to pass out—" Phil sat back in the corner of the taxi and made up his mind to get as much out of this dreary old world as possible and let the future take care of itself.

When he arrived at his home Nonnie met him at the door. She told him that his mother was out and gave him his mail. Hurriedly shuffling through the envelopes he dropped all but one on the table. This one had the postmark "Paris" on it. He hastily tore it open. It was from Pat.

"I know this letter to you will come as very much of a surprise. When I went to Switzerland, I thought my heart was breaking, but when you get this note, I want you to know that happy I will be. I told my mother when I left that she could arrange a marriage between M. Gaston Le Page and myself.

"I came down to Le Harve to tell you this, but did not get there in time, and besides, I wanted to clasp your hand once more before we parted forever. Poor me! I only saw your face and it looked happy.

"M. Le Page is very good looking, very rich, and two years older than myself. It will be a convenient marriage and everybody is most delighted with it.

"Tell madame, your mother, that she need not fear Pat any more.

"I hope you are very well and that the little Natlee has welcomed you with open arms, for after all, Philip, a young American girl would have a better chance of keeping your vagrant heart, than "PAT.

"P. S.: Cherie has been grieving much for you. She has just asked me who I was writing to, and when I told her, she inquired, 'Is he never going to stay all night in my papa's room again?' Fortunately, M. L. Page was not present to hear that awkward question.

"I am putting this postscript in, dear Phillip, so that you may read the end of my letter with a smile, as I did, when I wrote it."

CHAPTER LV

RESOLVED TO LIVE IT OVER

"IT'S all over," said Phil to himself. "She calls me 'Phillip'." He had always been a little superstitious about his name. He noticed that when any girl began to care for him she started by calling him "Wynne." He had always marked it as the second stage in each of his love affairs, and when she unconsciously reverted to the name of Phillip, he knew that the episode was over.

Although Phil smiled at Pat's postscript, it was with rather sad eyes and trembling hands that he tore the letter into bits. For a moment or two he held these pieces in his hand and then dropped them into the wastebasket.

For quite a while he sat there, thinking over the last three years of his life, which seemed to him were very definitely wasted. He decided that most of life, anyway, was the bunk. Physical comfort was all there was to it. The only thing you really could clamp yourself to. He realized also that it was not by length of time that youth was counted, but by experience.

He had crushed all the experiences of his life into the last three years—physical, mental and spiritual—for, strange as it may seem, Phillip Wynne Tracy IV knew that his mental and spiritual experiences had been just as many and just as over-powering as were his physical ones.

Now he was old and he didn't want to be old. He didn't want to be bored. He didn't want to be blase. He wanted to be young. Then, with a snap, Lyra Hilliard crept into his consciousness, and with her name on his lips, he determined, if possible, to get back some of the thrill of life that had been his before he went overseas.

One Pittsburgh woman said:

"It was reading those letters from other women that made me try a package of Rinso the first time. Otherwise I never would have believed that doing the week's wash could be so easy. Why, Rinso just soaks all the dirt out of the clothes so that when I take them from the washer I only have to rinse thoroughly and they're ready for the line. Without any hard rubbing at all they turn out whiter and prettier than ever. It certainly is great in the water here! I use it for everything—dishwashing and all other cleaning."

NAVAL RESERVE GUNNERS SET NEW MARKS

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 11.—New target practice records for four-inch guns in the fourth naval district were established yesterday by reservists in the Camden annual cruise of the destroyers' scouting fleet. Reservists aboard the U. S. S. Sharkey, comprising the Seventh Division, Second Battalion, of New Jersey, made the greatest score with eight hits in a like number of shots. The U. S. S. Toucey, with the Eighth Division, made seven hits out of eight shots. The Ninth Division U. S. S. Brecke made eight hits in slightly greater than the time interval.

Target practice continued most of the afternoon on the Southern Massachusetts coast. In addition to the Camden reserves, the Pittsburgh unit also made a perfect score on the U. S. S. Charles Ausburn, bringing the fourth district record for this and previous cruisers far beyond other districts.

The target was a small red flag two feet above the surface and represented a submarine periscope. If an enemy sub had been lurking in the vicinity all four destroyers undoubtedly would be credited with a submersible to record. Surface craft showered by concentrated fire from all ships would have been destroyed.

Reserve officers during target practice handled the ships, directing fire without assistance from regular ship officers.

SAYS MINORITY PARTY SOLD

Charging that the Democratic party of Allegheny county has been sold to the majority party for what patronage some of its leaders are able to obtain, former Registration Commissioner W. K. Hodgkinson announced as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for County Commissioner against the Houlahen-Brennan slate announced by County Chairman David L. Lawrence.

"I am opposed to the slating of candidates by professional politicians," said Hodgkinson, after protesting against the sacrifice of his party for jobs. "I am opposed to a third term for any public officeholder. I favor a public audit of the records of the County Commissioners."

Lorna Throws a Party and Lays Trap for Betty To Rewin Lorrimer

"I [illegible] trumpets [illegible] that you [illegible] name in electric lights. [illegible] stardom," he insisted.

Betty [illegible] and smiled. "I hate to think of her getting callous and hard and greedy [illegible] many of them," she said.

"She'll be all right," consoled Lassways, "and perhaps she will tire of it and wait to marry—you know, Miss Walton, I have always wanted to hitch my matrimonial wagon to a star."

Lorna [illegible] In the general [illegible] of the seating arrangements Betty found herself next to Lorna, who tried to move [illegible]

"No, don't go [illegible] I'd much rather sit by you than any of these stupid men."

In the general [illegible] Betty felt her little bead handbag slip from her lap to the floor. Lorna helped her [illegible] In vain [illegible] find it when we get up," said Betty.

Lorna felt it with her foot [illegible] passed it up and [illegible] in her own lap, [illegible]

"This is really an occasion," Lorna said suddenly. "Not only the celebration of Mr. Lorrimer's production, but the celebration of my birthday, which was last week."

One of the girls of the company sitting near asked idly, "What spoils?"

"This," and Lorna unfastened a new necklace, a short string of big beautiful matched pink pearls with an intricate clasp of diamonds.

They were passed around to be admired. They came to Betty and she handled them briefly and [illegible]. Then with a sigh and a word of admiration she handed them to Lorna, who took them but did not clasp them on again.

A moment later when conversation had turned to other things she suddenly called out:

"Give me back my pearls, somebody—and I'll start the dancing."

Everyone looked up in astonishment.

"Don't be funny—where are my pearls?" she demanded imperatively.

An excited unbelieving murmur arose.

"Wait a minute," Lorna called. "Who had them last?"

Betty, white, looked Lorna steadily in the eyes and said firmly, "I did. I gave them back to you, Miss May."

"You did not; you must be dreaming."

Lorna rapped on the table with a knife and ordered swiftly:

"Every one stay right where you are. Here you—" she hailed a distraught waiter, "close those doors and be quick about it. Now this joke has gone far enough. Lock the doors. Turn out the lights."

There was instant darkness.

"When I have counted ten," called Lorna, "the lights are to be turned on again. The pearls must be in the center of the table or there will be trouble."

Lorna counted slowly, dramatically. "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten."

The lights flashed on. Every one looked at his neighbors, then at the center of the table.

The pearls were not there.

"That will be about all," Lorna screamed angrily. "Sit still. We will search these people. Stand up, the lot of you."

There was some hysterics, no little anger, a few signs of amusement.

The search was rapid, really nothing but a series of motions and naturally produced nothing. Lorna returned to her place. She was crying now. They were real tears, of excitement and triumph. Suddenly she stopped and held up a handbag.

"Whose is this?" she asked.

Betty raised her hand.

"It is mine," she said quietly.

Lorna held it up in full view of the now transfixed company. She opened it, shook its contents upon the table. A sigh escaped her, a long-drawn "Ah-h" of contentment.

Out of the bag the pink pearls tumbled and lay in all the innocence of beauty on the center table before the riveted, startled eyes of the crowd.

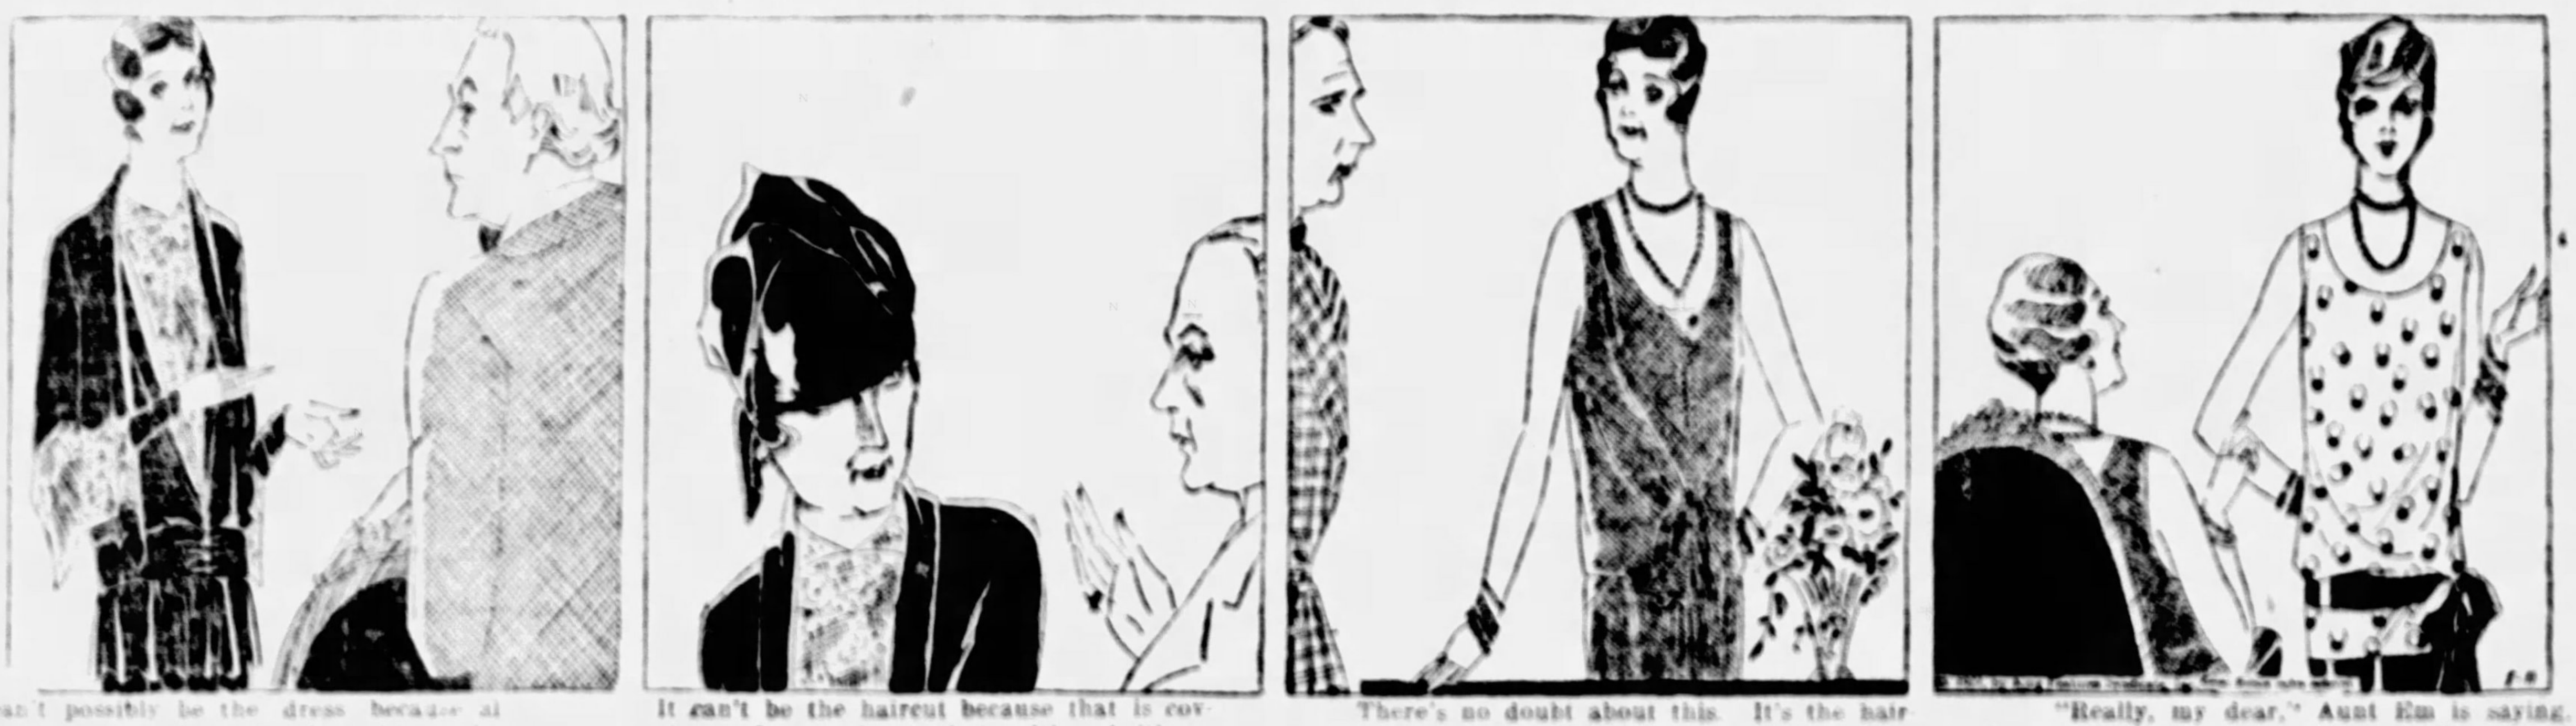
CHIC CHERIE -:- Wonder If She Planned All This? -:- LATEST FASHIONS



It can't possibly be the dress because although it's a smart dress there's nothing giddy about it. Just the proper amount of black satin correctly put together with the proper amount of beige Alencon lace. It must be the haircut that makes Aunt Em's lawyer stare at he in this startled manner.

It can't be the haircut because that is covered up. It must be the hat—although it's an exceedingly modish hat of black satin ribbon cleverly draped. Yes, it must be the hat that makes Aunt Em's banker forget entirely what it was he asked her to stop in at the bank to see about.

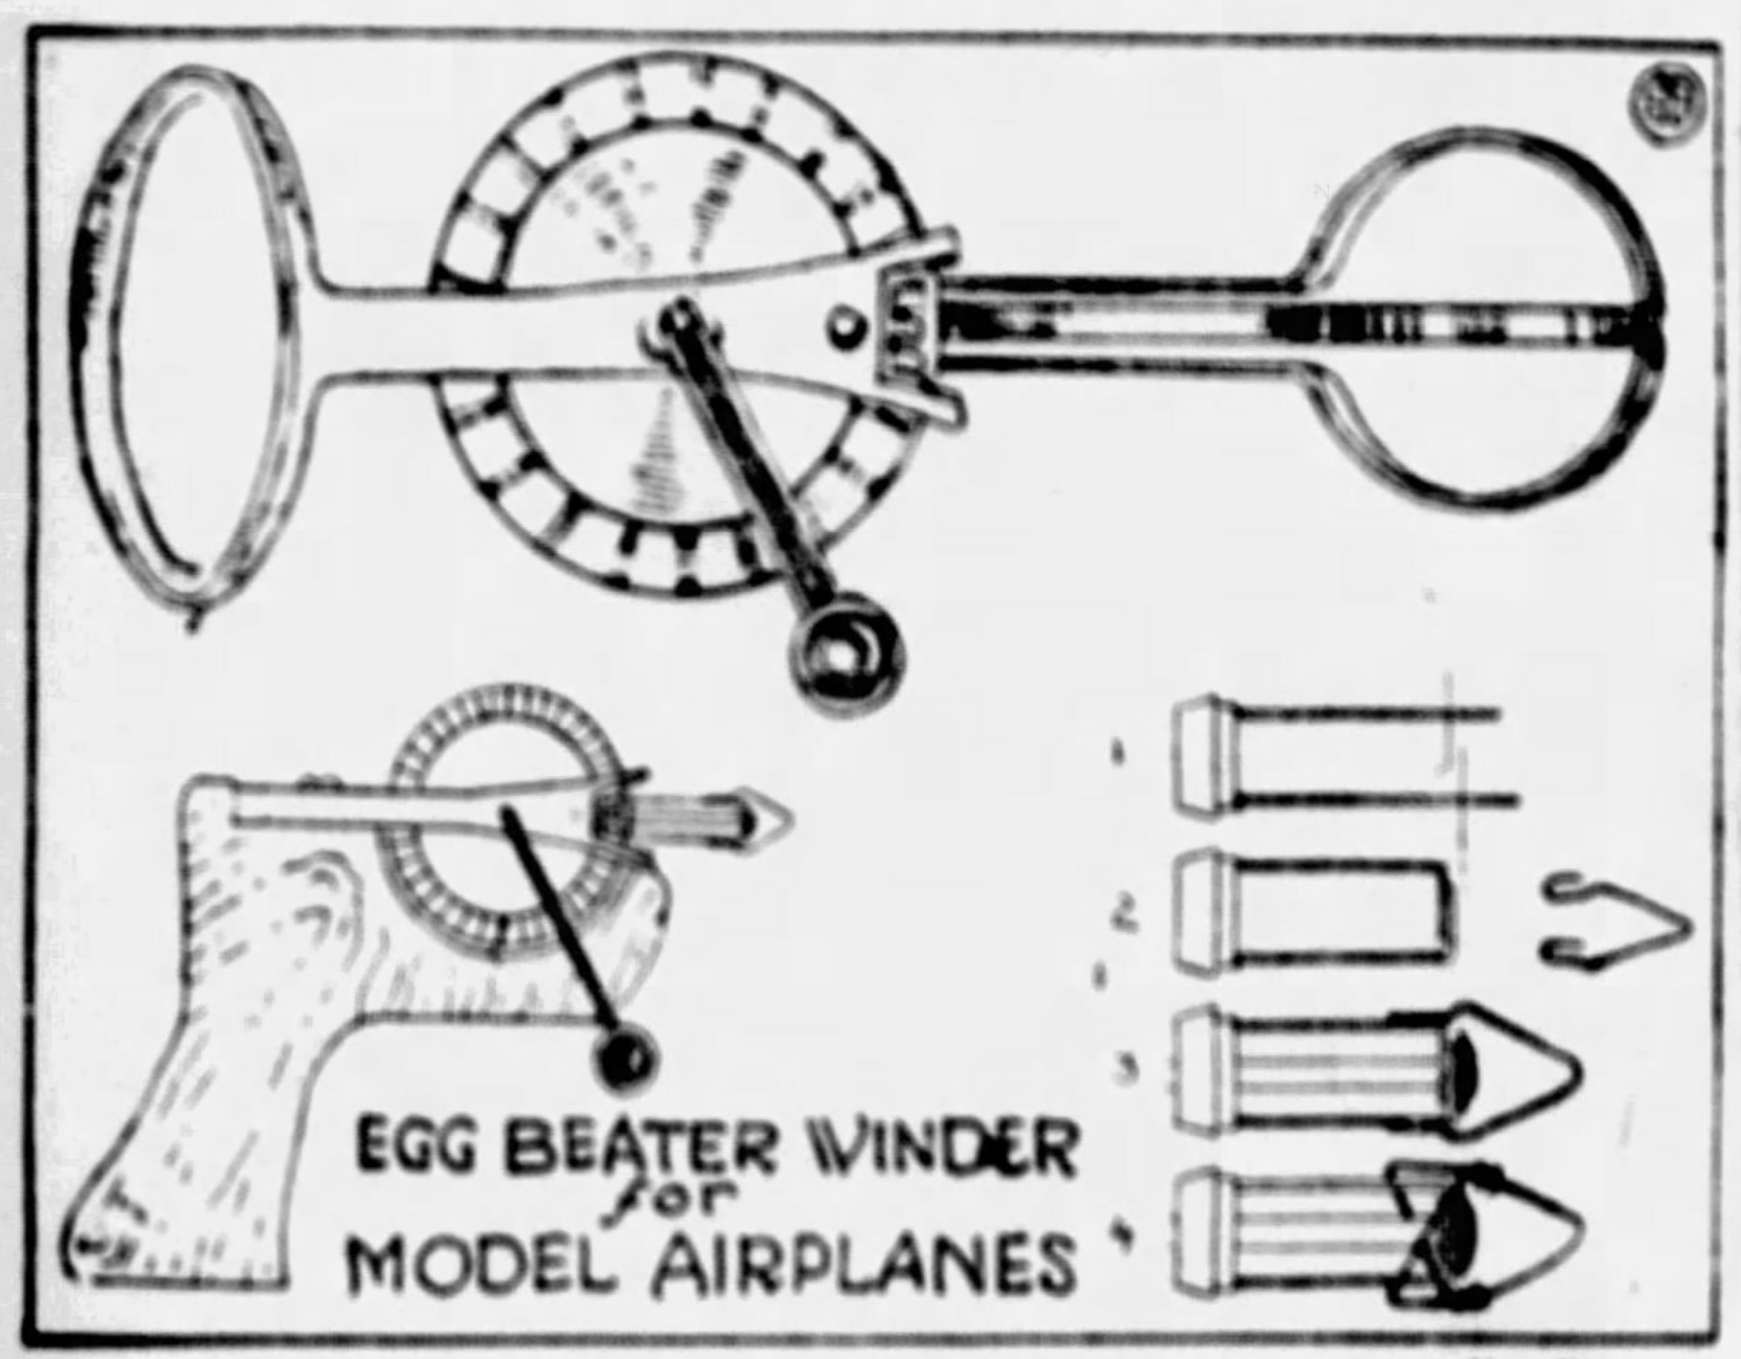
There's no doubt about this. It's the haircut and the jewelry, but especially the gown that makes the chief business man of Main Street wonder whether this is Aunt Em or her younger sister. It's an evening gown of crepe Roma in an odd and smart shade of purple with an odd and smart cut.

"Really, my dear," Aunt Em is saying, "I see no reason for staying here. When the people I've known all my life look at me as though I were crazy I think it's time I left." Cherie, in a dress trimmed with polka dots of spangles, agrees so easily that one might almost think she had planned the whole thing.

Building and Flying Model Airplanes

By PAUL EDWARD GARBER,
In Charge of Aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution.

MAKING A GEARED WINDER



No 7

AS YOU have discovered in flying your model airplane, winding the propelling rubber by hand is hard work. It was therefore suggested in the last article that a geared winder could be constructed from an egg beater. In preparation for the construction described today, obtain an ordinary egg beater such as sold at any hardware store. Preferably select one in which the large driving gear rotates between the two driven gears, and in which the beater shafts are firmly fixed in the frame. With such a beater in hand proceed to make your geared winder as follows:

In the drawing an ordinary eggbeater type is shown. It is to be cut where the dotted line indicates. This cutting may best be done by clamping the eggbeater in a vise and sawing through it with a hack saw. If you do not have the necessary tools, the use of them may be procured at a garage or machine shop. Having severed the beaters, and cut the shafts, next pull the small gears and attached pieces of flat metal off of the shafts.

Where the dotted lines in Figure 1 indicate, drill holes through the metal strips, using a drill which will make a hole through which the gear shafts may pass. Bend the metal strips back of the holes, so that when bent inward they will appear as in Figure 2. The two holes must be in the same line. Now take a small piece of copper wire, or wire of any metal which can be easily soldered, form two fittings like the one illustrated in Figure 2.

GET WASHERS

Procure two washers of the size that will have a hole like the holes you have drilled in the strips. Clean the shaft ends and also the washers and after placing the gears and their attached strips back on the shafts, solder the washers on the end of each shaft as shown in Figure 3. Care must be taken in this step, that the strips are not soldered also. Solder the wire fittings on the strips as shown in the same figure. These must be so placed that the pointed ends will revolve as a point and not off center. This completes the winder.

Figure 4 shows a possible alternative whereby the wire fitting may be wired onto the strips, if these be made of aluminum, which can not be soldered as easily as other metals. If the constructer wishes to avoid soldering the washer as well, this may be retained by beating over the end of the shaft.

Many winders are used with the original handle, but some may desire a more comfortable grip. For them, the pistol grip shown in the drawing is suggested.

This winder is used by detaching the "S" hooks from the nose of the model [illegible] to the wire fittings on the winder. Then, while an assistant holds the propellers, the person holding the winder walks away from the model until the rubbers are stretched at least twice their normal length. Rubbers hold more twists when stretched. He then turns the winder, noting that he must wind so that the propellers will revolve correctly. If it is necessary for him to wind backwards in order to twist the rubbers correctly, he should invert the model and reattach the "S" hooks, so that he can wind in the easiest manner. As he winds the rubbers, he should slowly advance toward the model, so that as the rubbers are fully wound he is working at the nose. The "S" hooks are then reattached to the model, care being taken to prevent the rubber strain from breaking the model frame. The model is then launched in flight.

Geared winders are a wonderful aid to the sport of model flying, and every model flyer should make and use one.

BENEFIC stars dominate today according to astrology, which discover certain adverse influences that conflict with those of a favorable trend.

Under this sway aviation is subject to the most fortunate direction of the stars and important new inventions are indicated.

Since extremes always are manifested in world development there is the prognostication of frightful conflicts in this period of intellectual evolution.

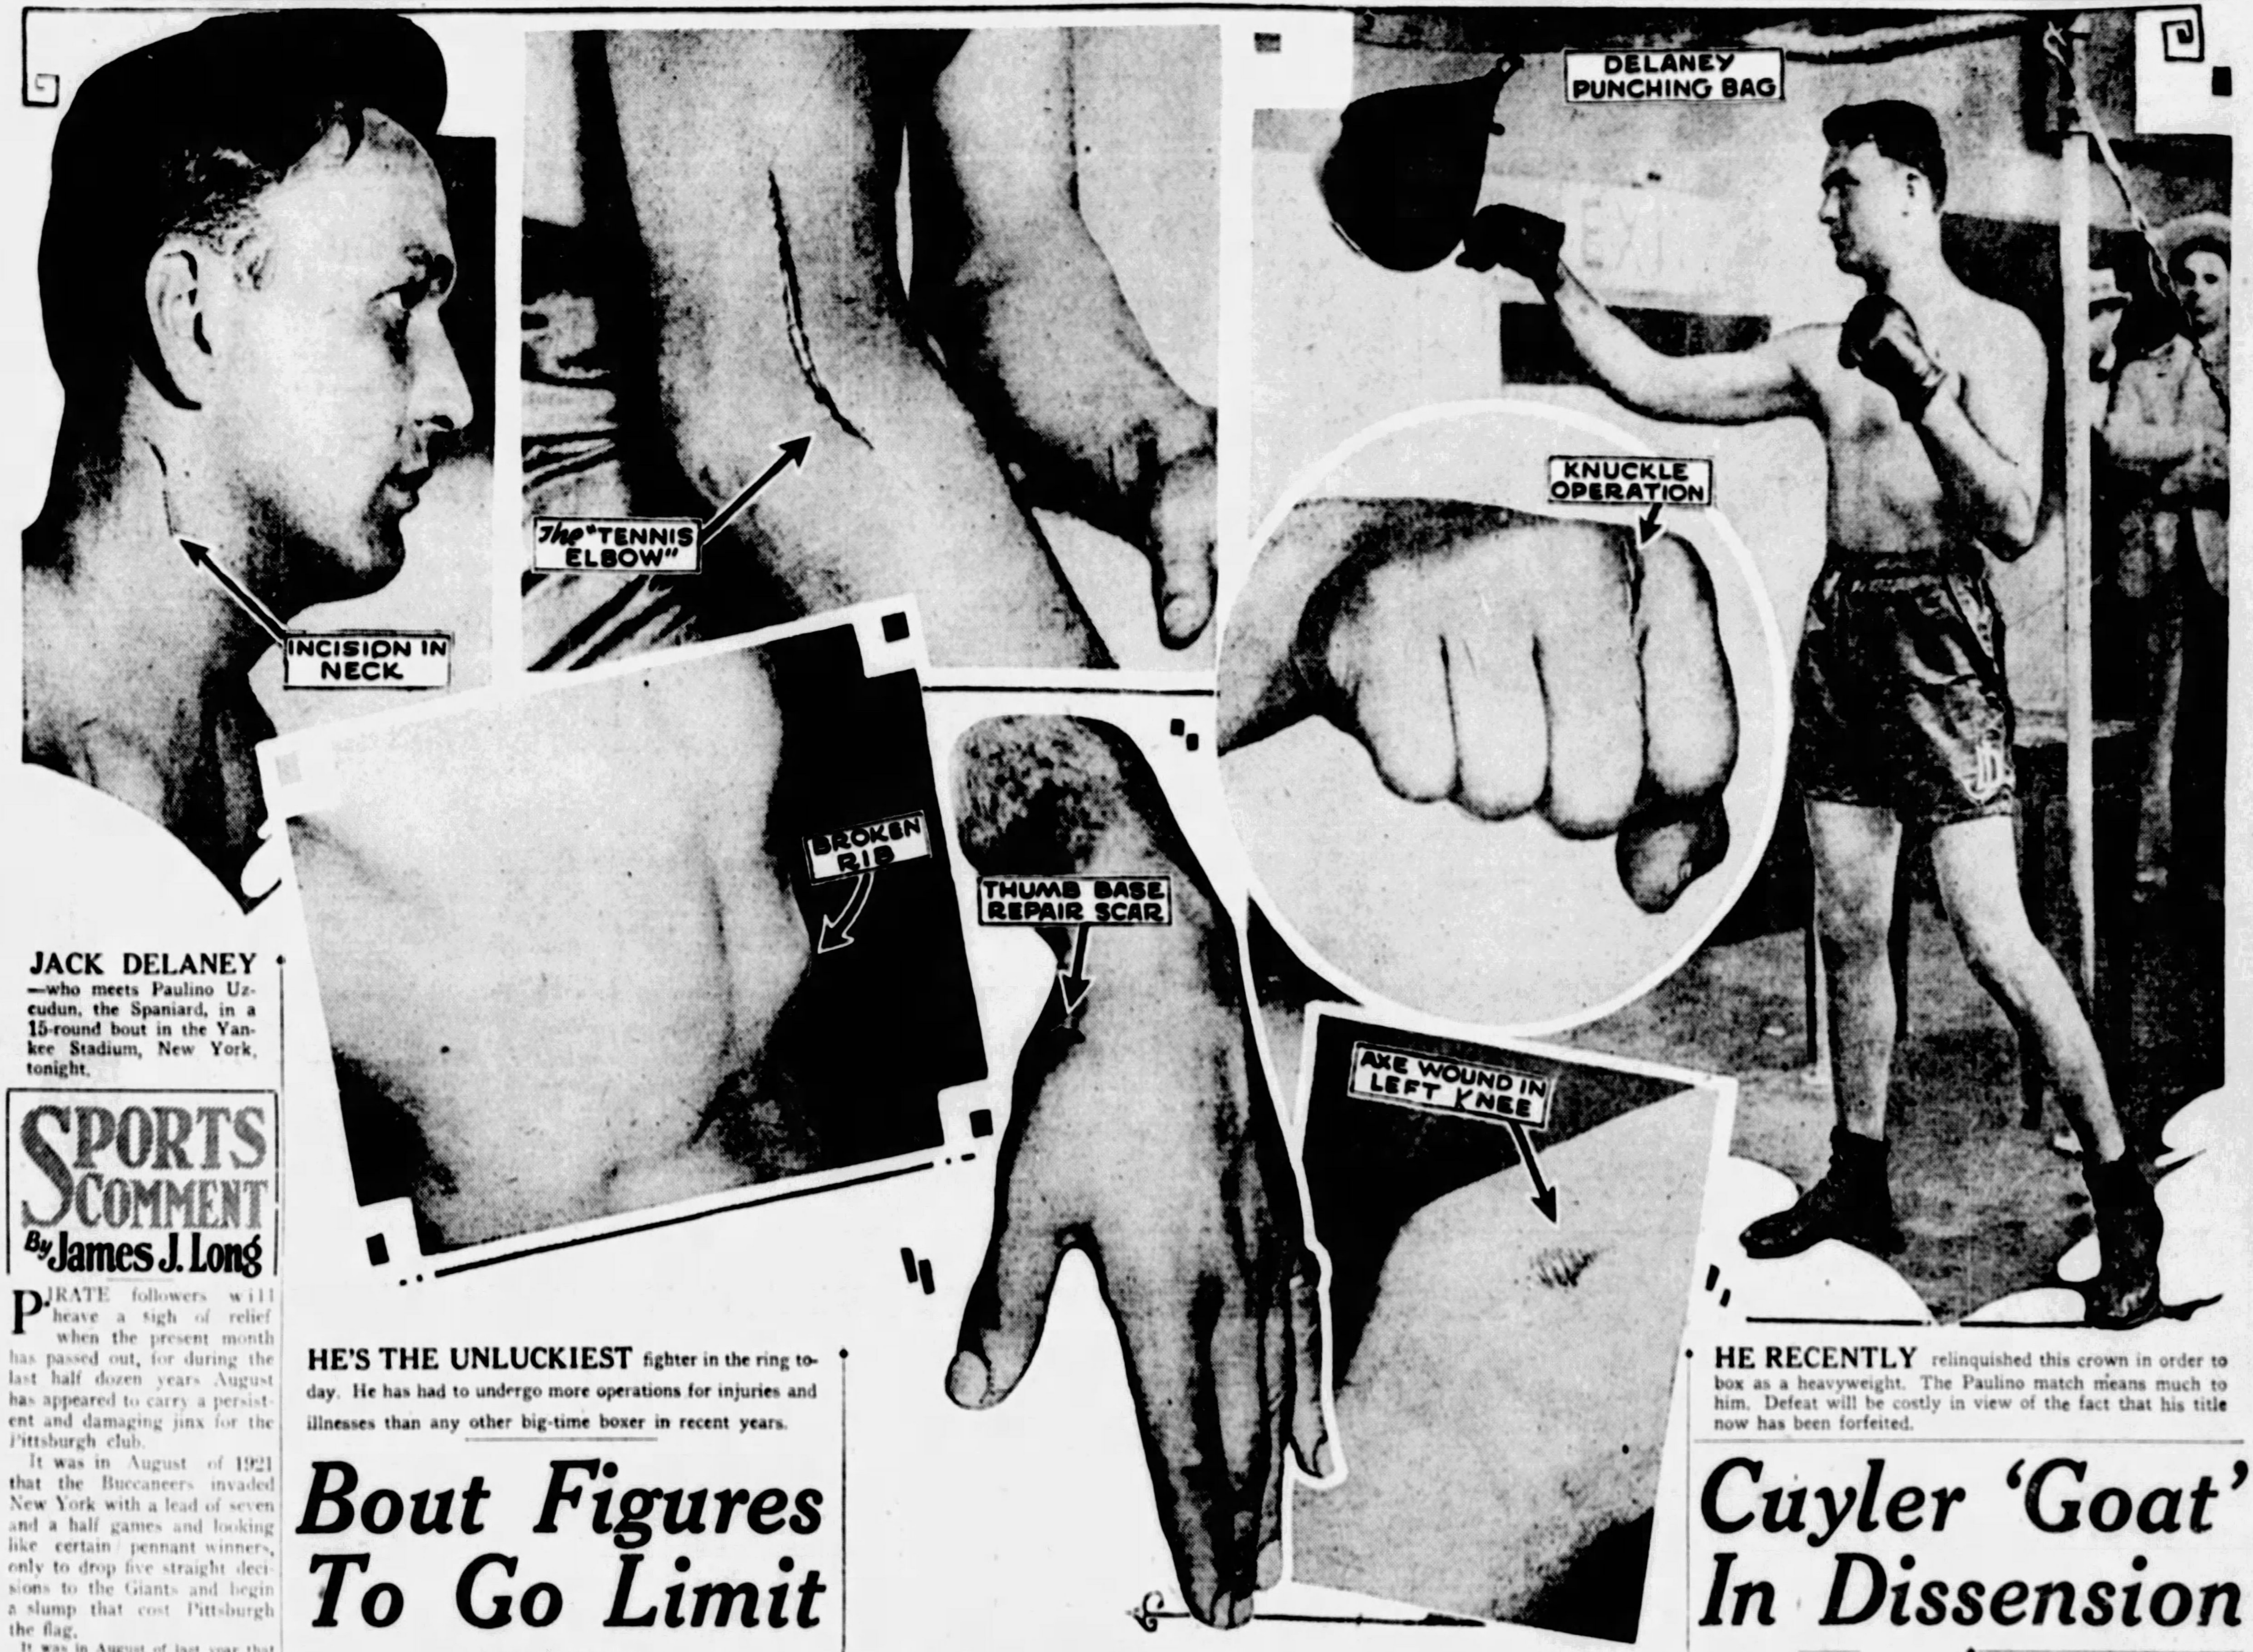
PAULINO AND DELANEY AWAIT BELL; EVEN MONEY ON FIGHT

HARD LUCK KING OF RING -:- JACK DELANEY, WHO MEETS -:- PAULINO TONIGHT



JACK DELANEY —who meets Paulino Uzcudun, the Spaniard, in a 15-round bout in the Yankee Stadium, New York, tonight.

HE'S THE UNLUCKIEST fighter in the ring today. He has had to undergo more operations for injuries and illnesses than any other big-time boxer in recent years.

ABOVE ARE SHOWN some of the scars he bears from wounds and incisions. Despite all of these ailments he won the light-heavyweight championship of the world from Paul Berlenbach.

HE RECENTLY relinquished this crown in order to box as a heavyweight. The Paulino match means much to him. Defeat will be costly in view of the fact that his title now has been forfeited.

SPORTS COMMENT

By James J. Long

PIRATE followers will heave a sigh of relief when the present month has passed out, for during the last half dozen years August has appeared to carry a persistent and damaging jinx for the Pittsburgh club.

It was in August of 1921 that the Buccaneers invaded New York with a lead of seven and a half games and looking like certain pennant winners, only to drop five straight decisions to the Giants and begin a slump that cost Pittsburgh the flag.

It was in August of last year that the baseball world was rocked by the big upheaval on the Buccaneer crew that led to the dismissal of Max Carey, Carson Bigbee and Babe Adams, and wrecked any chance that the Corsairs might have had to land on top.

NOW in August of 1927 comes the Cuyler incident, originally only a comparative triviality in the form of a $50 fine, but causing such a discussion in Fandom as to create a condition on the club that may lead to the trading of the star outfielder next winter.

It was in August, of recent years, too, that highly-touted prospects like Pitcher George Boehler, for whom $20,000 had been paid, First Baseman Everett Barnes and others of whom much had been expected, were found wanting and sent back to the minors.

All around, August surely has been a hoodoo month for the Rovers.

IN connection with the Cuyler case, some of the stories in circulation have been to the effect that Kiki would be sold.

You may safely stake your last chip that nothing of that sort will happen next winter, or any other winter, as long as Cuyler is fit for big league service, or good enough to be any assistance to the Pittsburgh club.

That's one thing that they've all got to admit about Barney Dreyfuss, and something that cannot be said of many other club owners in upper balldom. He never sells ballplayers for cash.

The Pittsburgh magnate has always caused it to be clearly understood that he is in the market to buy good players, not to sell them. He is ever ready to listen to a trading proposition that might help the local club, just as any wide-awake baseball man is, on the alert always for a chance to strengthen his team, but in all of his 28 years as head of the Pittsburgh club he has never sold a player for money except the unsatisfactory ones who were shipped back to the minors or claimed

Bout Figures To Go Limit

By DAVIS J. WALSH,
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—Chicago having attained the battle of the Twentieth Century limited, New York will accept the next best thing at the Yankee Stadium tonight in the form of a scuffle of the split second with Jack Delaney, heavyweight by personal nomination, in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, the well-known human being, in the other. If Paulino wins, it will be a moral victory for the dental supply houses, for the lad smiles a very mean bicuspid.

If Delaney gets the official nod, he will be up in the chips again just as high as he was before Jim Maloney gave him a thorough going over.

In fact, the old steam-up for the 1928 sucker season is already issuing from the boiler, even before Dempsey and Tunney so much as utter a harsh word. The winner of tonight's fight will get Jack Sharkey early next year, the survivor of that will get the Dempsey-Tunney winner for the championship, Rickard will get tired counting the certified checks and somebody will get a punch on the nose.

In other words, we may be looking at the next heavyweight champion tonight, anything being possible after what happened in the Dempsey-Sharkey fight.

WILLS FIGHT FIGURES.

Paulino was a ribald jest to many a merry Andrew when he came here last winter, but the boys seem to have lost their sense of humor since the gent slapped down Harry Wills in a punch. They, in fact, have made Paulino an even money choice against Delaney, and, given a few more hours for mature deliberation, they probably will send him into the ring a favorite.

They might look further and do worse, at that. The gent will weigh around 190 pounds against Delaney's 176. He will have 15 rounds in which to make his weight and strength mean something to the slender, somewhat fragile Delaney and he has a chin that only a stonemason could love.

Yes, Paulino will have a lot of natural advantages working for him unless Delaney can make his "kill" early in the fight. The latter has a fine right hand punch, as viewed from the standpoint of the light-heavyweight division, but it naturally is not so effective against heavyweights. And when the heavyweight in question happens to be a hombre with a jaw like the horn of a saddle, that punch figures to be even less potent.

Delaney, of course, will outspeed his man at the outset and probably will give him a sound veneering for five or six rounds. But, if he gets past that point, it may be well for Delaney to fear the worst. His record indicates that he is inclined to blow up in the late rounds of a long fight, as evidenced by his several battles with Berlenbach and the fact that none of his knockouts beyond the sixth round have been scored at the expense of good men.

However, it may be that Delaney, even failing to drop the Basque, will yet be able to outstep him for 15 rounds. It may be that Paulino's style will prevent him from getting anywhere any time with a man like Delaney. For Paulino is a swinger and Delaney is at his worst against a straight puncher. Again, Paulino is a rusher and Delaney ordinarily would ask for nothing better.

Be that as it might, a lot of form students have suspected these many months that Delaney doesn't belong in the heavyweight division in the first place, and, if that is the case, a man-eater like Paulino possibly will afford the best means of proving or disproving the contention.

It should be a great fight while it lasts and it is likely to last until the final bell.

Cuyler 'Goat' In Dissension

was true in other years—years before the victory of 1925.

And now, on the heels of the arrival by the Chicago Cubs at the peak, with the Cardinals and Giants pressing hotly in the rear, comes the unfortunate Cuyler incident. There have been more or less open objections raised throughout the season over the way in which Manager Donie Bush was handling the Corsairs. Matters have come to a distinct head with the fining of Cuyler, who seems to have been made the "goat." Cuyler, one of the best all-around players and outfielders in the majors, was fined $50 for neglecting to slide into second base in a game with the New York Giants at Forbes Field last Saturday.

According to other players, both Pirates and Giants, Cuyler made the correct play when he forestalled a double play by legally interfering with Jackson. Had Cuyler slid into the bag, it is claimed, the Giant shortstop would have been able to have retired both Kiki and Paul Waner, who hit the ball down to first base to Terry.

There are those who feel that the fining of Cuyler was just an ill-disguised effort to pass the buck, and that the matter should have been settled in the club house.

Eastern sport writers are recalling other instances of ill feeling and trouble that have beset the Pirate brig. They are recalling the time that Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburgh owner, is said to have poked his head in the door of the Pirate dressing room and shouted at the disconsolate players, "Quitters, quitters." This was during the regime of Fred Clarke. Dreyfuss is said to have been angry at what he thought was a lack of fire and interest on the part of his team, and had been berating the men in the club house after every game.

Critics at present are disposed to feel that Bush is making a great mistake if he is permitting "kitchen cabinet" advisers to assist him in running the club. It is felt that it is his place to shoulder the blame for the showing of the Pirates, and that right or wrong, he alone should rule.

STANTON STAR ELIMINATED

One upset marked the first round of match play of the annual invitation tournament being played over the links of the Stanton Heights Golf Club today. The veteran campaigner, J. B. Crookston, of district and state-wide fame, fell before the onslaught of T. L. Campbell by a margin of 2 to 1. Charles A. Totten of the home club, 19-year-old medalist in the qualifying round, advanced to the second round by eliminating A. B. Sherrick.

Samuel M. Parks, Jr., of Highland, former junior champion, was put out by Fred Weppner of Stanton Heights, 4 and 3.

L. S. Semans of Nemacolin defeated the younger Totten, Raymond, by 3 and 2; Jule Pollock of West Virginia defeated Ben Petties, 2 and 1; Joseph L. Crawford of Oakmont eliminated Sam Graham, the policeman golfer, 2 and 1; Jock Graham of South Hills won over Joe Stanger of Highland, 2 and 1, and James Lappan tripped R. M. Heaths, 7 and 6 in other championship flight matches.

Slaskamper, who is 25 years old, was purchased from the San Antonio club. He stands 5 feet 8 inches, weighs 150 pounds and bats right and left-handed.

Through the Sport Lens

By Havey Boyle

H. A. BOYLE.

THE Detroit club, when Ty Cobb was the manager, offered serious difficulties to the umpires of the American League. Many a game was delayed by Tyrus' complaints. Often he would hold up the game for minutes while he ran from the outfield toward the umpire to file an appeal. More violent were some of his other tactics. Once he cruelly stepped on the toes of the capable Frank Wilson, umpire, who since that brush with Cobb has found his way into the National League.

Umpires in the American League are not having the same amount of trouble this season with Detroit. The reason is that the manager of the Tigers this season is George Moriarty, former American League umpire, who, being able to grasp all sides of the playing and umpiring questions, acts in less illogical fashion that did the stormy Cobb.

STILL, the situation is not altogether cleared up. Moriarty's lack of violent protest causes some opposing clubs to say that he does not kick because he is getting the shade on close decisions. They infer that a spirit of camaraderie between present umpires and an umpire of the past is responsible for these alleged edges given Detroit.

This charge will be dismissed by intelligent fans. Umpires are bulwarks of baseball and while they make mistakes it is quite infrequent that anyone has the temerity to say they err deliberately.

I HAVE often thought that it would make interesting reading to set forth what a pitcher, in a tight place, says to one of the infielders, while in the stands the fans buzz and roar in a frenzy of excitement. A report comes to hand which may be interesting.

In a Pirate-Brooklyn game this season Dazzy Vance, after breezing along in swell fashion, found himself in a tight jam toward the finish of the game. In fact, the tieing run was on third and only one was out. Traynor, so the report runs, was at bat, on edge, determined.

Dazzy took a rest. He stepped off the mound and approached Barrett, an infielder, and held conversation. Those in the stands, of course, believed Dazzy was detailing just how he was going to work on Traynor, with a possible admonition to Barrett to be on his toes. Now that's the way it might read in the magazine stories.

BUT in real life here is what Dazzy said, while the fans roared, Traynor chafed, and the rest of the club stirred restlessly: "Say, I should have told you this before the game, but I forgot and I just happened to think about it now. You know that waitress at the Busy Bee, the one with the light hair. Well, she told me she thought you were a pretty nice fellow."

Dazzy tells this story himself. The old boy has a genuine sense of humor. Possibly, the waitress was a bit of Vancerian mythology. You are still curious, of course. You want to know what Vance did after this amazing interlude? Why, he struck out his man, of course.

ROGERS HORNSBY, second baseman of the Giants, and possible manager-to-be, knows how to take his public. One of this department's spies, who will be called Harry Mooney, for that is his name, relays repartee between Hornsby and Pirate fans while Rogers served as a coach at first base in one of the recent games.

"Did you pay that $90,000 you owed that bookie?" yelled one tormenter.

"Well, I must be pretty good to get that much credit," Hornsby called back.

"How do you like Frisch's batting average?" another yelled.

"Pretty good," called back Hornsby, "but last year the Cardinals finished first when I was with them. Now look at them."

"Well, your club now is not going so good."

"Not so good," said Hornsby, "but we'll finish second to the winning Cubs anyway."

AND now I must leave the less weighty affairs of baseball to press an important point that needs attention. It concerns public dinners and banquets. Nearly everyone attends these affairs, for the times have become so dizzy that if one asks his neighbor how he is feeling the neighbor suggests holding a banquet, when with considerable speech-making the condition of the neighbor's health may be established by the various speakers. Only a few escape a multiplicity of dinners and banquets, so the point I wish to make concerns a great many persons.

The point that bothers me is why the various chefs of the nation insist upon serving a half-chicken along with a mess of peas on the same plate. Eating a half-chicken in public is a trick in itself, but when the hazard of loose peas is added the distress becomes great enough to call for alleviation.

I HAVE attended many dinners where the slippery chicken and the elusive peas have been served in conjunction and have tried moving the plate so that the peas would face the north and later so they would face the south. Even west and east in turn have been tried, but my score never has been lowered. Every time when the knife slips off the chicken there is a spray of peas to cover neighboring diners.

It is a bad game, because the risk is not commensurate with the returns. If a suitable prize were offered the man who did not hurl more than four peas at his neighbor I would view the contest with more zest, but so far the chefs seem to think that conquest in itself is reward enough.

I commend the question to Mr. Harry Kremer, Mr. Henry Lochbaum, Mr. James Rennelle and others of our local dinner and banquet functionaries. Is a separate dish for peas entirely out of bounds?

Present conditions border on being an outrage. Have I a second for the motion?

YOU may say it is not properly a sporting column matter. I'll fix that in a moment. The dinners and banquets, to which I refer, are staged to honor men in the sporting whirl, ball players, boxers, football men, pole vaulters, golf stars and many others.

Brand, Jr., Joins Club To Play in Amateur

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

Fred Brand, Jr., Western Pennsylvania amateur and junior champion, had to become affiliated with the Hannastown Country Club, near Greensburg, and many, many miles from his home, in order to compete in the National amateur championship, to be played on the links of the Minikahda Country Club, Minneapolis, starting a week from next Monday. The 17-year-old star, until recently, has been playing under the spangles of the Sewickley Y. M. C. A. golf links, for he lives down in that neck of the woods—so it may be taken for granted that he had to put out a bit of membership money to a club aligned with the U. S. G. A. so that his entry would be accepted, and it was.

Fred Brand, Jr.

"Fred has paid his dues and is a member in good standing at Hannastown," said Thomas S. Jamison, president of the W. P. G. A., and an official at the Greensburg Club.

Six of eight entrants in the National from the Tristate district hail from the Steel City. The veteran campaigner, William C. Fownes, Jr., president of the U. S. G. A., who was national amateur champion in 1910, will head the district contingent's invasion of the mid-west. With him will be Allison R. Maxwell, of Oakmont, state amateur champion, and four mighty formidable youngsters—Brand, Samuel M. Parks, Jr., annd Knox M. Young, Jr., both of Highland, and Charles A. Totten of Stanton Heights. Brand and Parks are 18, Young is about 17 and Totten is 19.

Larry Semens, of the Nemacolin Country Club, near Little Washington, and H. Densmore Shute, of Huntington, W. Va., and Columbus, make up the remainder of the sectional force.

by other major league clubs over the waiver route.

AS A matter of fact, it is not an absolute certainty, by any means, that Cuyler will even be [illegible] in a trade, though signs may point that way at present.

At any rate, it is safe to predict that he will not be let go unless the Pittsburgh club receives in exchange for him his full value in playing material. That value is considerable.

The impression that the Pittsburgh management is seeking to make a public example of Cuyler, is riding him or trying to force an issue that will lead to his being traded, is erroneous, according to the Pirate officials.

Cuyler was merely fined for a poor play, not so much as a punishment to him individually as a warning to all the players on the club that they must play heads-up baseball at all times," said President Barney Dreyfuss. "It was intended for the future good of the whole team as well as for the good of the individual player. The fact that Cuyler had been fined never would have reached the public if Cuyler himself had not told it."

HULBERT IS LIKELY NEW OLYMPIC COMMITTEE HEAD

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(UP.)—A fairly strong possibility exists pointing to Murray Hulbert of New York becoming president of the American Olympic Committee soon. The vacancy at the head of the working branch of the United States organization for the Olympic movement caused by the untimely death of Bill Prout of Boston would, in the regular order of things, be filled by the first vice president of the committee, Henry G. Lapham, also of Boston. There is considerable doubt about Lapham assuming the leading role in the work for the Amsterdam games. The Hub sportsman has not stated so, in so many words, but it is understood that he has given his close friends to understand that he is not keen for the task.

FREEMAN SCORES KAYO

TOLEDO, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Tommy Freeman, Erie, Pa., contender for the welterweight championship, knocked out Billy Piltz of Tulsa in the ninth round of a scheduled 12-round bout here last night. Heavy Andrews of Erie, welter, got the newspaper decision over Frankie Palmo of Cincinnati in eight rounds.

SOCCERITES PREPARE TO OPEN SEASON

By TOM BIRKS.

THE Scottish Clan Soccer League held its annual meeting at the Hotel Henry last evening, and while the attendance could not become enthused over, there is every reason to feel that the clan loop will sport a six-club circuit. Ambridge and Clan McPherson were the only clubs represented with Tom Clark and Harry Thompson sitting in. However, it is felt that Donora, Clan McPherson, Cameron, Homestead, Douglas and Scott will be in the lineup when the loop is closed.

The election of officers was not proceeded with, this being dispensed with until the next meeting.

JUNIORS READY.

Now that the annual general meeting of the Scottish Clan League is a matter of history, Western Pennsylvania soccerites will await with interest the outcome of the confab scheduled for Burdine tomorrow evening when the Chartiers Valley League, a circuit composed of 16 live wire clubs, gets together in the interests of junior soccer.

It is impossible to pay too much attention to the junior end of the game. The juniors of today are the seniors of tomorrow and the sponsors of that loop will feel that way about the reorganization plans to be effected at this session.

However, there has been a dearth of junior talent in this section during the past few years. So it is up to the West Penn Football Association to get out and foster the junior end of the game. Quite a number of the leading clubs were looking through a microscope at the juniors last season to try and bolster their clubs in the latter stages of the race.

But outside of Chappel and Barrafoldi, who landed with the national amateur championship, and both made good playing an important part in the ultimate championship that came to Pittsburgh, none other of note could be named as outstanding.

If combing through the juniors only produces two real stars in a season there is a crying need for the boosting of the game to help the juniors out. Miller and Compton of Galatin who later played with Pittsburgh were good products, but came into the Blue and White lineup at the season's end.

WESTINGHOUSE CLUB.

The Westinghouse Club is eager to start its season in the near future and wishes to stage some Sunday games away from home until the season proper opens. Any club wishing to book the Valley club should write Secretary Hugh George, 128 Tintsman avenue, Turtle Creek, Pa.

where fine tobacco is a part of fine living

EVER since Sir Walter Raleigh brought the first tobacco home from America, the Londoner has made fine tobacco a part of fine living.

So it is only natural that he should be quick to appreciate the pure natural tobacco taste and fragrance of Chesterfield.

By his preference, London takes its place among the world capitals of Chesterfield's popularity.

Lone Star at New Top In Local Market

Demand for Lone Star Gas made its appearance again on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange with spirited bidding for the issue pushing the price up to 48, a new high record for the present capital set-up. Orders to buy Lone Star were reported coming from scattered sources and the inference was that outside investment was the answer to the stock's strength. So far as news was concerned, the downtown traders remained in the dark. Other than the previously heard stories that a 50 per cent stock dividend is on the cards, there has been nothing to account for the Lone Star movement. However, the feeling is pretty generally held that some definite announcement is not far away and hopes along these lines are maintaining the stock at its present levels.

Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, feature of yesterday's dealings, did not appear in the early sales lists but bids for the issue disclosed no change in the price situation obtaining yesterday when the stock ran up to new high record levels. Fireproofing preferred sold again at 27, the price established on its upturn yesterday, but only a small amount changed hands. Calorizing Company preferred, a comparative stranger, came out at $5 a share for a small lot. Very little trading has taken place in this stock over the past several months.

When activity did develop in Screw and Bolt during the second hour, the demand was strong enough to force it above Wednesday's best price. Sales were recorded up to 49, a new top since the shares were listed.

News and Views

MES Slump Scares Street.

The 45-point break in Manhattan Electric Supply unsettled the entire list around midday. Stocks in which a fairly steady tone had been evident early in the session began to lose ground and bears jumped on various leaders in which bullish activities had been noted. The Manhattan Electric incident had an ominous similarity to the famous collapse of Devoe & Raynolds 16 months ago, when the market suffered the first real slump in the Coolidge boom. Devoe had been run up wildly, very much after the manner of the recent move in Manhattan, and outsiders with only slight knowledge of the company were attracted to the buying side merely by the fact that the stock seemed to have no top. Recalling the Devoe incident, conservative traders got out of long stock as a precautionary measure against the possibility of a general slump such as was in the making when the paint company's shares were on the toboggan.

Wabash Back Dividends.

A $16,000,000 suit has been filed against the Wabash Railroad Company at Fort Wayne, Ind., by the Willoughby Company and the Girard Trust Company, both of Philadelphia.

The suit represents a petition for declaratory judgment. The two Philadelphia firms are holders of Class A Wabash preferred stock and they declare all owners of the same class of stock are entitled to a total of $16,000,000 in back dividends.

The plaintiffs aver that the earnings of the railroad have been such that this added amount in dividends could have been paid on this class of stock.

St. Paul Protests.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway announced that it would intervene to prevent the proposed merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads.

A formal petition of intervention has been forwarded to the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington.

"So powerful a combination of railroads would seriously impair railroad competition in the Northwest," declared H. E. Byram of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road. "Once formed, it could never be dissolved."

Politics and the Rails.

Railroad shares continue to be overshadowed by the industrials because the rails feel the effect of what political influence there is at work more than any other group. That is because the speculative community feels there is little chance of the rail magnates giving up their ideas of how mergers should be consummated to an extent that will bring approval of the Commerce Commission to the consolidations before Congress convenes. Therefore it is feared the entire railroad merger question will be the subject of new legislation.

According to the Bureau of Mines production during that week was 8,500,000 net tons and during the week ended July 23 it was 8,230,000 net tons.

Coast Merger Discussed.

Attempt again is being made to effect a consolidation of the Union Oil of California, Richfield Oil, California Petroleum Corporation and Pan American Western. The latter is Edward L. Doheny's enterprise. The entire project is merely in a talking stage and has not reached anywhere near the point where terms or other important details have been discussed. Various efforts have been made over the last year or two to combine California oil properties. Union Oil has been mentioned in half a dozen different consolidations, although nothing ever came of these reports. There has been severe competition among the large California gasoline distributors with resultant demand for means of eliminating disastrous fighting. A consolidation of the four companies mentioned in the present rumors would create a corporation having over $200,000,000 resources, and place it second only to the gigantic Standard Oil Company of California, largest oil enterprise on the Pacific Coast.

CORN CROP LATE AND SMALL

By Universal Service Wire.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—The smallest corn crop in 26 years excepting 1924 is indicated this year, the Agriculture Department announced today.

It is estimated at 2,385,266,000 bushels, the crop reporting board stated.

Because the crop is unusually late abandonment will be increased considerably above the average. Poor conditions in Ohio, very poor in Indiana and "worst on record" in Illinois were reported.

A potato crop of 411,000,000 bushels, a substantial increase over the short crops of the last two years, was forecast.

Crops' Dollar Value.

The government crop report was about as expected as compared with last year. An increase in wheat yield and a yield of corn which, with the exception of 1924, promises to be the lowest in 26 years. Figured on the dollar basis, crops this year will yield more to the farmer than last.

Chicago Board

CHICAGO, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Wheat, corn and oats all touched new high price records for the season today, but the advances failed to hold in the face of heavy profit-taking.

Reactions were also given some momentum at times owing to stock market weakness. Increasing black rust damage to domestic spring wheat, together with talk of future heavy abandonment of corn acreage, had much to do with bringing about the price bulges.

Black rust crop damage advices from North Dakota today were given special attention and in particular word that south from Minot early wheat is damaged from 50 per cent to almost total. Some fields were reported as being in such bad condition from rust that they will not pay to cut. These reports, together with samples shown here today from Raleigh county, N. D., upset belief that the rust damage in North Dakota is confined to the Red River Valley and territory adjoining.

In connection with official comment that there is much corn acreage which is so late that only an unusually late fall will prevent considerable more than usual abandonment of corn acreage, leading unofficial authorities here asserted today that frost must hold off until November 1 if the whole acreage included in the government estimate is to mature. It was also contended that there are several million acres of corn now so small and late that frost before the middle of October would be destructive.

PROBED STOCK BREAKS 56 POINTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—The market value of the common stock of the Manhattan Electrical Supply Company was practically cut in half on the New York stock exchange today when the quotation dropped 120½ to 64½.

An investigation into the recent violent advance in that issue from a low of 53½ to a high of 132 was started a few days ago by stock exchange officials, following persistent rumors that a technical "corner" had been created by its market sponsors, and has not yet been completed.

The break, which represents a reduction of $5,600,000 in the market value of 100,000 shares of stock outstanding, is one of the severest in stock exchange history. It was accompanied by a general reaction in the market in which about a dozen high-priced issues collapsed 4 to 15 points, Houston Oil and Timken Roller Bearing being the hardest hit.

On the New York Curb a sharp collapse took place in the shares of the Chicago Nipple Company, the "A" stock breaking from 47½ to 18 and the "B" stock from 24½ to 5.

The Manhattan Electrical Supply closed last night at 120½, fluctuated erratically within a 5-point range in the first hour, then broke precipitously to 75, rallied above 80 and then collapsed again to 64½ early in the afternoon.

Houston Oil dropped 15¾ points to 128 and rallied to 135; Timken Roller Bearing dropped 10 to 123½ and snapped back to 130 and DuPont, Commercial Solvents B and Delaware and Hudson sold down 5 points or more.

Violent fluctuations of this nature invariably scared many traders and investors away from the market, and resulted in heavy liquidation throughout the list.

Little attention was paid for the time being to outside news developments. A further shading in time money rates, bringing the shorter maturities below 4 per cent for the first time this year, indicated that there was no strain on the credit situation. Call money was in plentiful supply at 3½ per cent.

Failure of the directors of the Southern Pacific to increase the dividend caused speculative disappointment in some quarters although the regular payment was all that was expected in banking quarters. In the first wave of buying, new peak prices were established by American Express, Consolidated Gas, General Railway Signal and several other issues.

The increase of more than 85,000 tons in United States Steel unfilled orders had a stimulating influence, as it was regarded in some speculative quarters as a sign that the industry had "turned the corner."

New York Bond Market

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Brooklyn Union Gas 5½s, climbing rapidly in the wake of the stock on the "big" board, again featured trading in today's stock market. The bonds quickly jumped to 231, around 75 points above the year's low.

High grade mortgages continued firm, tendencies in reflection of the reluctance of holders to sell while money conditions continue easy. Chesapeake Corporation 5s were within ⅛ of their record high price, while International Telephone 4½s sold at 93¾, the best of the year. Goodyear Tire 5s were offered rather freely but were easily absorbed around 94, yesterday's closing figure.

Weakness cropped out in a few issues bearing high coupon rate or quoted at low prices. Ulster and Delaware 5s dropped nearly 2 points to 82½ and Warner Sugar Refunding 7s went down 1½ to 90.

French obligations continued their recent firm trend, but some of the German issues inclined to heaviness. United States government securities attracted little attention.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column. United States bonds in dollars and (32d) seconds of dollars:

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—(AP.)—The raw sugar market showed continued firmness early today and prices advanced 1-32c to the basis of 4.40c. At this level a local refiner purchased 30,000 bags of Philippines due the later part of the month and 5,000 bags Porto Rican prompt, with additional buyers at the same level, but holders asking still higher prices.

The higher spot market and firmness abroad, where the market was said to be influenced by unfavorable weather for the growing crops, had a steadying influence in raw sugar futures during the early trading. With near positions showed gains of 1 point, while later months were about unchanged from the previous close. The demand, however, which came principally from shorts and commission houses, was soon supplied and reactions followed under liquidation, with the market at midday net unchanged to 1 point lower.

The refined market was unchanged at 5.70 to 5.80 for fine granulated. Demand was light and of a routine character.

THE BIDDING

Final Bid 4 H Played by South

Salient Points of the Bidding

Holding seven Hearts and two side Aces, North jumps his partner's bid to four, to prevent a Minor suit call by East which, if made, might result in carrying the bidding too high.

Salient Points of the Play

Tricks 2 and 3. West's opening of the three of Clubs shows not more than five cards of the suit, so that East must hold at least three. Declarer is therefore safe in playing two more rounds of Clubs to discard Dummy's singleton Diamond on the third round.

Tricks 4 to 10. Instead of taking the Spade finesse twice in hopes of finding one honor in West's hand, Declarer exhausts his own hand of Diamonds and forces a lead from East either of Diamonds, which will permit of a Spade discard, or of Spades up to North's tenace, thereby making a Small Slam.

Keeping Up Appearances

Kings and Queens, Especially, Must Do It.

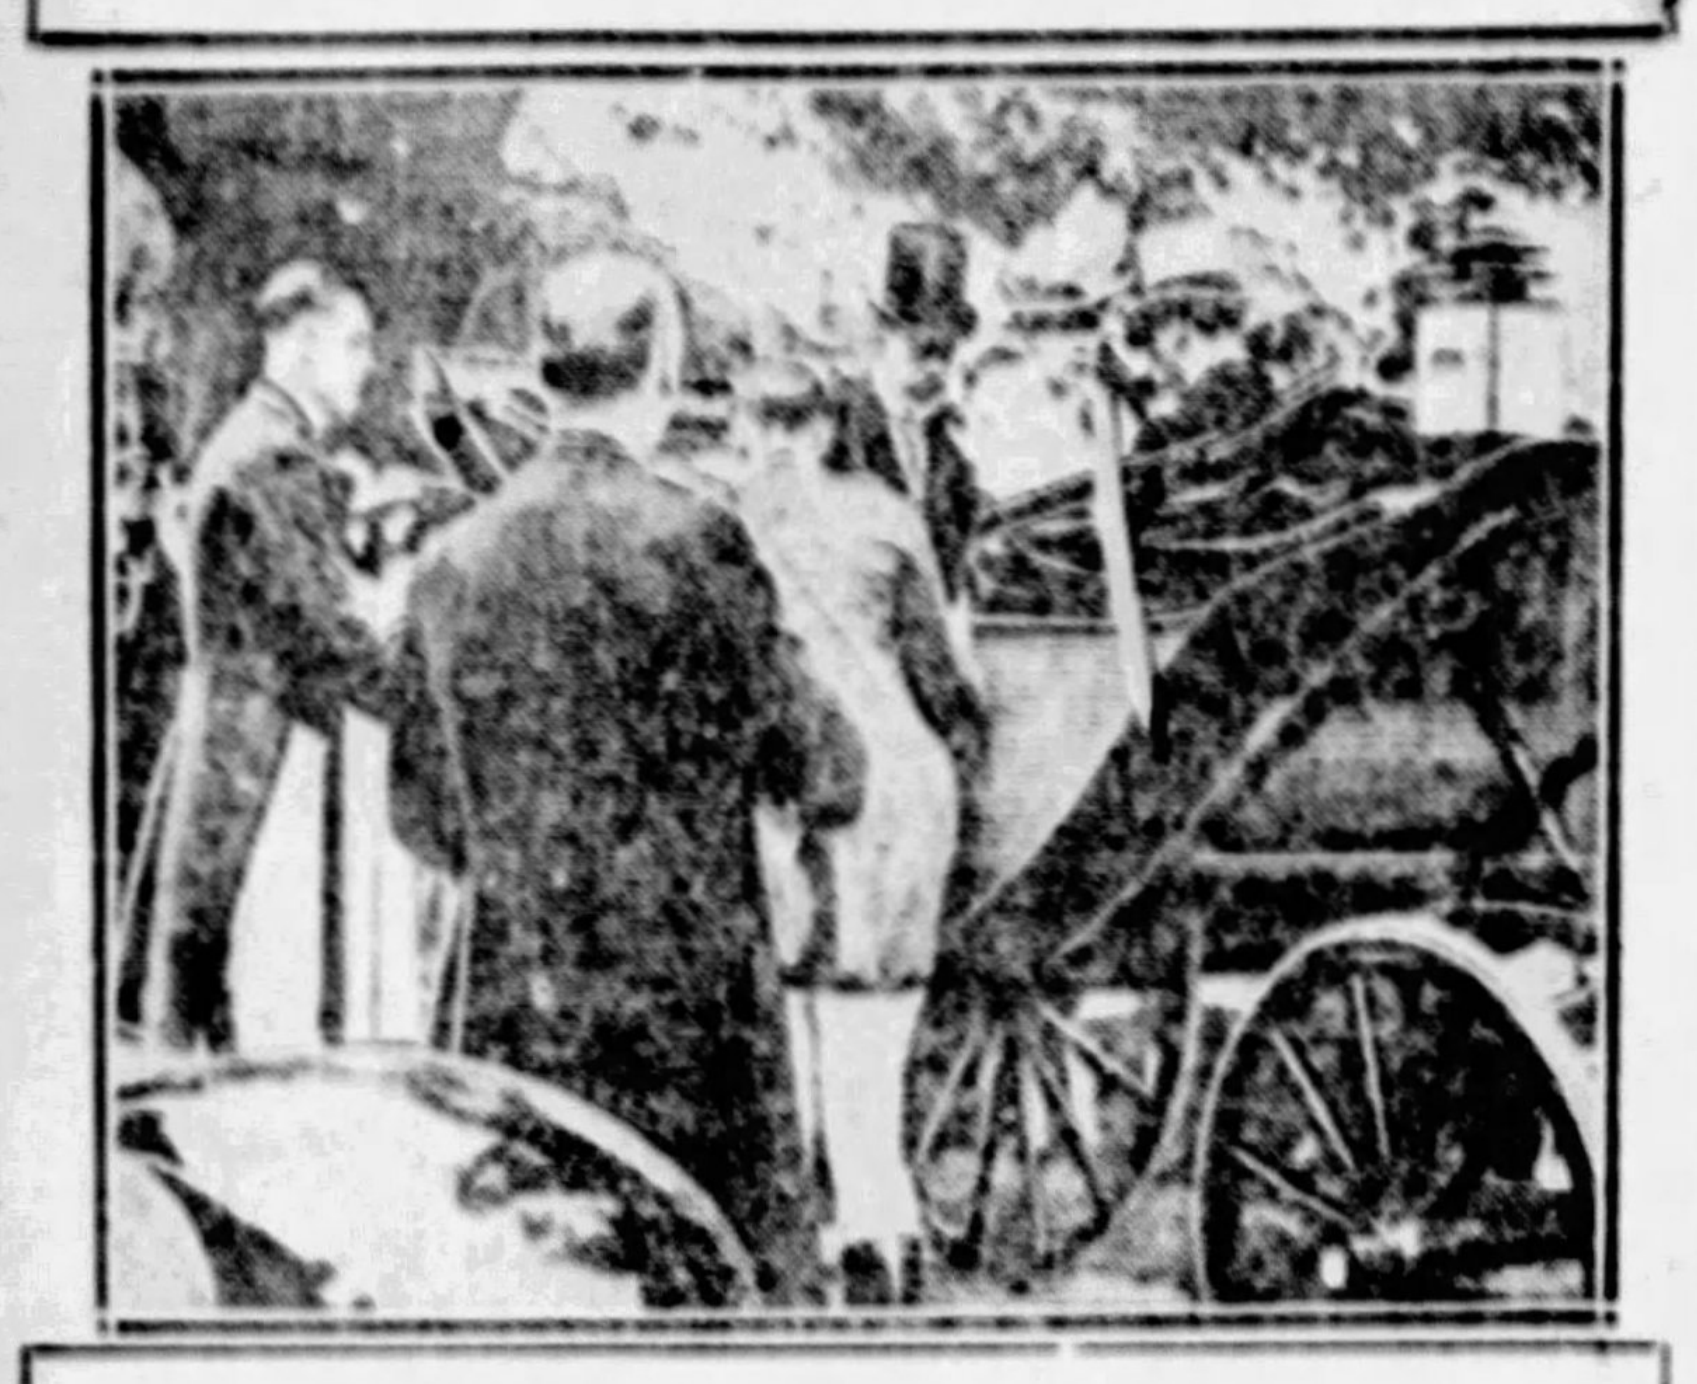
Registered U. S. Patent Office.



HIS MAJESTY CHANGES VEHICLES.

Two things count in this world.

FIRST, WHAT YOU REALLY ARE.

SECOND, what the crowd thinks you are.

For ordinary men, the first, WHAT YOU REALLY ARE, makes up 99 per cent of life. Success, earnings, the opinion of intimate friends, happiness in family life, all depend on what you REALLY ARE.

The opinion of the outside crowd that you don't know, and that doesn't know you, means little to the average run of us.

But for those born in the limelight and those that have climbed into it, what the crowd THINKS YOU ARE is often more important than what you are in reality.

This fact intelligent rulers, kings, queens, great financiers, etc., appreciate.

Greatness is at the mercy of the mob. Its security depends often on what is called "mob psychology."

These two pictures illustrate the wisdom of King George, or possibly the wise thinking that is done for him.

In the first picture you see the King and his wife, Queen Mary, with two of their sons, the Prince of Wales and Prince Henry, changing from their powerful automobile to an old-fashioned, horse-drawn "State carriage."

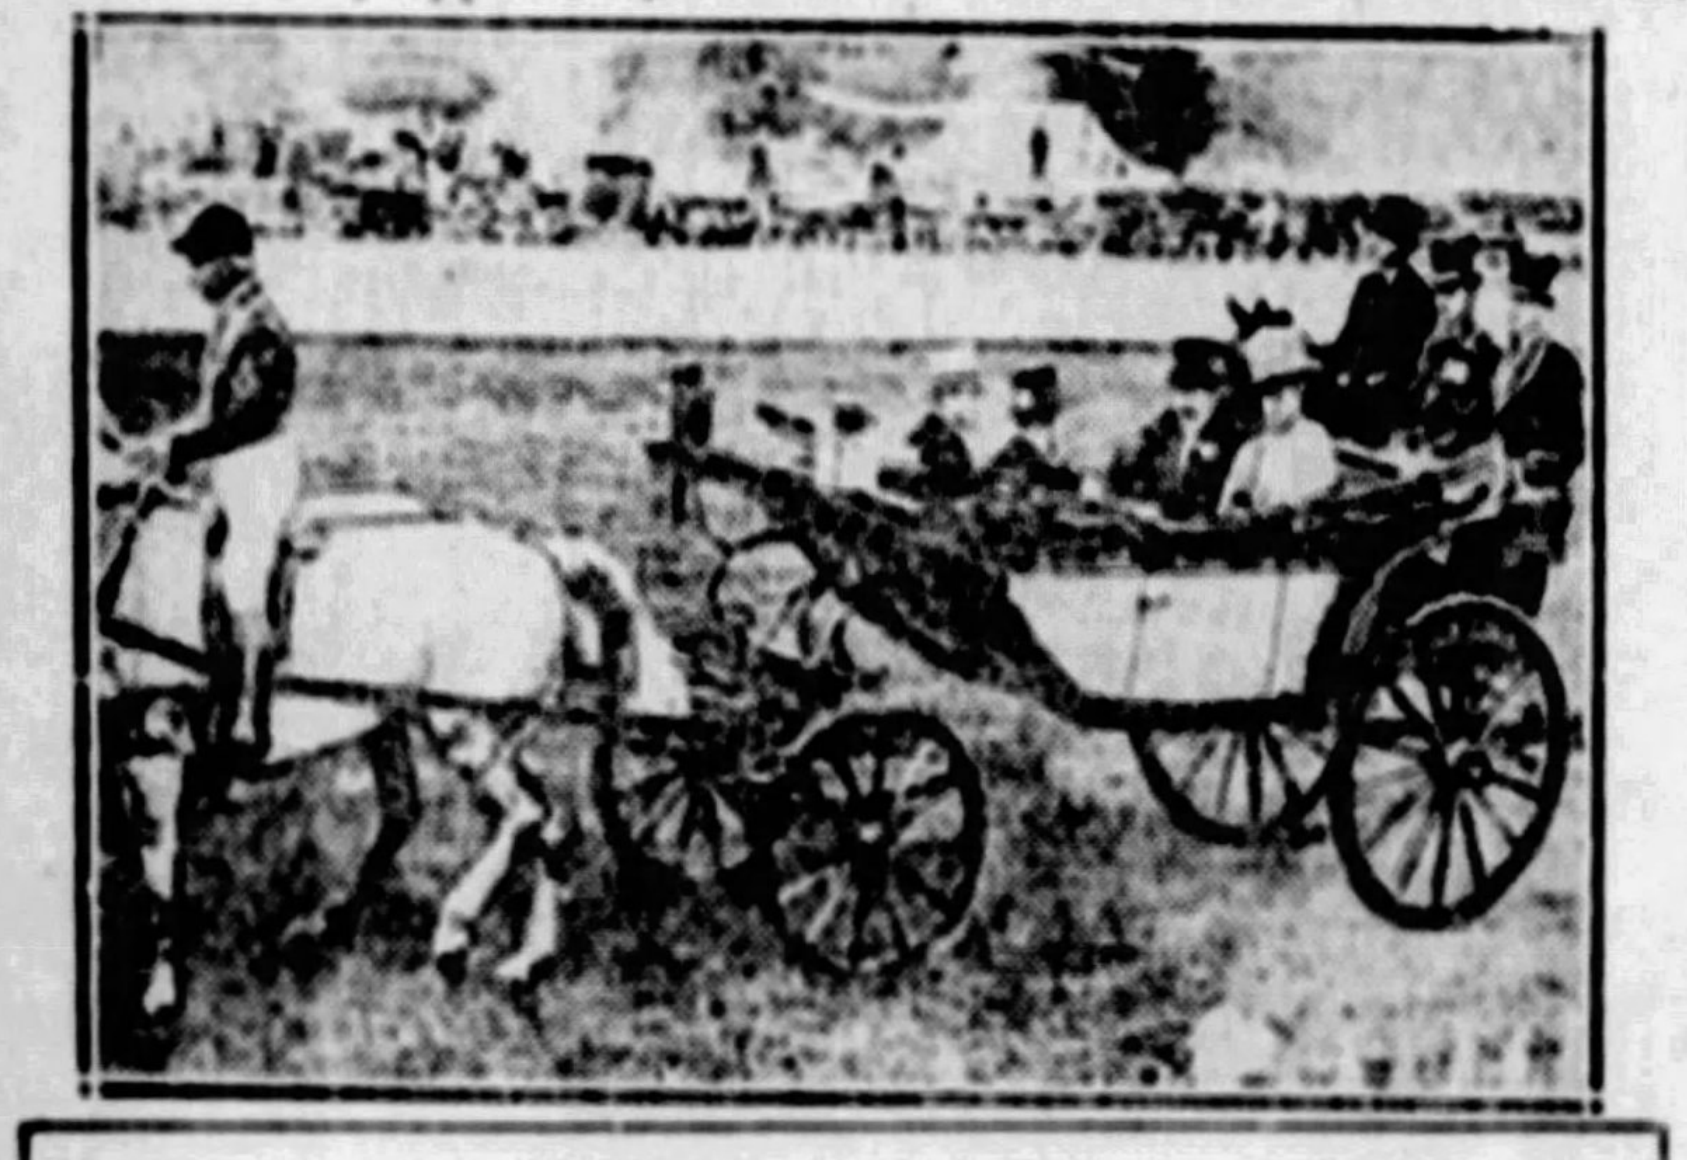
They were to represent the Royal House of England at the Ascot race course. There the nobility and gentry gather to enjoy themselves.

The new rich, with more money than imagination, finding their thrills in gambling are there, and the great cheering crowd that works for a living and leaves its money with the bookmakers.

In perfect comfort, the King, Queen and the two boys travel ALMOST to the racetrack in their automobile.

But an automobile is modern. Kings are ancient, they must have an ANCIENT SETTING.

The upper picture shows the King and his family getting out of the automobile in a secluded spot in the big park around Windsor Castle. From the automobile they change to the State carriage. And in the lower picture you see King, Queen and Royal Princes as they appear before the crowd on the Ascot race course.



HIS MAJESTY AND FAMILY ON PARADE.

The King and Queen occupy the back seat, of course. He with his top hat, the Queen, as always, dressed with long skirts, rather old-fashioned hat and dress.

Facing them sit the Prince of Wales in a black hat, Prince Henry in a white hat.

The hard-working crowd that has come to lose its earnings yells in delight. It is a fine thing to see a king, queen and two princes, drawn by four horses, with men riding on the backs of the horses, two servants in livery in the back, and an equerry riding on horseback beside the servants—all this suits Great Britain perfectly.

An empire, like a great religion, needs formality, something to impress the imagination.

People can't do their thinking for themselves, you must help them do it.

Advisors of the kings and queen of England know how to do that. Royalty retains its place as head of the nation, large income, comfort and dignity, although not the former POWER.

That arrangement suits the British nation, which avoids the uncertainty of electing a President every four years. Everybody is satisfied, even little nobodies that look at royalty and leave their money with the bookmakers. The poor geese think they will win it back another time. We have such geese in this country, millions of them.

Tales that are Told

Straight Salary Only

I UNDERSTAND you served in the army, Mr. Cohen?" remarked the new drummer by way of becoming acquainted with the owner of "Cohen's Clothing Emporium."

"Yes, two years I wasted soldiering around."

"But, of course, you got a commission?"

"Commission? Say, mine frent, t'irty dollars a month I got and not one cent commission."

Logical

FLANAGAN was constructing a brick wall at the end of a garden. The ground in this vicinity was inclined to be boggy.

"Good heavens!" exclaimed the man living next door. "I should have thought you knew better than to build a wall there, Flanagan. It'll fall over in a day or two."

"Indade," retorted the builder, "and who cares if ut does? Oi'm makin' her five feet high and six feet wide, so if ut does topple over, begorrah, it'll be a foot higher than it was before."

Where Was It?

TOURING in a remote district, a motorist was suddenly pulled up by a policeman, who stepped out into the road, his arm upraised.

The motorist stopped sharply.

"Better dim them headlights," suggested the policeman. "We're inclined to be perticler through the town here."

The motorist lit a cigaret and fiddled with his gear shift.

"Oh, all right!" he said affably. "I don't mind. By the way, where is this town you're talking about?"

New York Day by Day
by
O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—It is frequently stated that Broadway is the most agreeable of all places in which to be broke. It may be no disgrace to be poor here, but it might as well be. Indeed, there are few spots where a money valuation is so high.

Broadway's sympathy for the broke is expressed with a pitying "He was a good kid when he had it!" Almost any person who loiters along Broadway can point out a half dozen to the block who were rolling in kudos a year or so ago, but are stony now.

They may have backed a show, played ponies that suddenly decided not to be in a hurry or become a sugar daddy. Broadway has a hundred and one shrewd tricks to make a fat wallet lean. And the wiser they are, the harder they seem to plop.

The unfortunate who go broke rarely stage a financial comeback along the street that whips the universe. They must go elsewhere and begin over again. A score of so called "millionaire kids" have had their fling only to wonder how it all vanished so quickly.

They discover that even the head waiters who uncorked their lowest bows in flushed days greet them in adversity with a refrigerated reserve. It requires money to make Broadway click. It has no time for "hasbeens." It is interested in the eternal now.

Men who have successfully bucked the so-called Broadway game are those with plenty of money and sense of restraint. They dipped into the gaiety as a young clerk goes to Coney Island—a mere lark. And returned to their desks to forget all about it until the next fling.

Broadway claims those who are perpetually thrilled by its false camaraderie. A well-filled purse draws fair weather friends as sugar attracts flies. To those seeking only pleasure there is no denying its opulence and charm. But as for the broke, ask some member of the Tin Cup Brigade on almost any corner. Second or Third avenue has much more sympathy for the broke than Broadway.

The last stand of old New York horses unfit for further work is a packing company in Brooklyn. They are bought, slaughtered and shipped as horse meat to the trade in France and Belgium, which buys its meat from the Boucherie Chevaline.

It has been discovered that the men who invented ice cream sodas are alive and residing in New York. One is named John Robertson, and the other is Francis Tietz. They did not make a penny out of their invention, although others made millions. The yearly profit of one soda fountain in the Times Square section was said to be $200,000. A 50-cents-a-glass ice cream salon is in readiness for Park avenue.

A new taxicab company announces it is grounding drivers in courtesy before giving them positions. The instructor is an experienced driver, who says he has doubled his income by being polite. He received his training in Chicago, which has the best taxi service in America.

I do not believe taxicab companies lose much through the discourtesy of drivers toward fares. They are polite enough with a tip in prospect. It is the attitude toward pedestrians crossing the streets which makes many vow they will never use taxis if they can help it. A driver should realize every wayfarer along the street is a potential patron.

Every time the sophisticated magazines are bankrupt for an idea they have an article prepared on the passing of the stage door Johnny. Yet at every stage door nightly they are waiting. They are often there in full dress, just as pictured in the comic journals. And looking just as sappy.

Nasty Money

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Some time ago Uncle Sam's collections of income tax crossed the two-billion dollar mark for the first time in five years. On July 21 the income collector announced the collections closing June 30 at over two billion dollars.

Where does this money come from? We employ consuls abroad to give advice as to conducting American foreign business.

The agriculturists are clamoring for the government to help them. We have a tariff for helping certain manufacturers.

It is apparently our policy to endeavor to assist and stimulate American business.

But here is a plan by which the successful men of America, the men who make America's prosperity, are mulcted in the sum of over two billion dollars, and it is done in about as objectionable a way as possible.

Every firm must keep a regular set of accountants working all the time so that they can submit figures to the government's experts on income tax. They must keep their books for five years back all in perfect order and account for all their expenditures and receipts.

After they have done this and after they have hired experts to make out their tax lists, and after they have sworn to these lists, the government comes along four or five years later and assumes that they are liars and perjurers and reassesses the tax. Another set of experts is hired to make up this reassessment and the man has to pay for it.

What inducement has a firm to prosper and to get ahead in business when constantly watched by a set of government spies, and treated as criminals and when this tax is collected in the most annoying way possible?

When the tax is fixed the government announces that a man has to pay it immediately or be fined. To fight this decision he must leave his business and go to Washington, no matter how valuable his time may be, and the outcome there is problematical. He usually pays it in order to avoid the expense of delay and trouble.

If a reassessment shows that the government owes him anything, the government takes its own sweet time to repay, sometimes three or four years.

Why should a man be hounded and spied upon for making money? By attending to his business he gives people employment and increases the prosperity of his nation.

The government penalizes these efficient business men, and this plan is applauded by the ne'er-do-wells of the country.

An honest man in business has no objection to paying a legitimate tax, but when he turns it in, the government should employ sufficient agents to examine it and not wait four or five years, until the memory of facts has faded.

The men who are making this country prosperous should be encouraged and not be penalized.

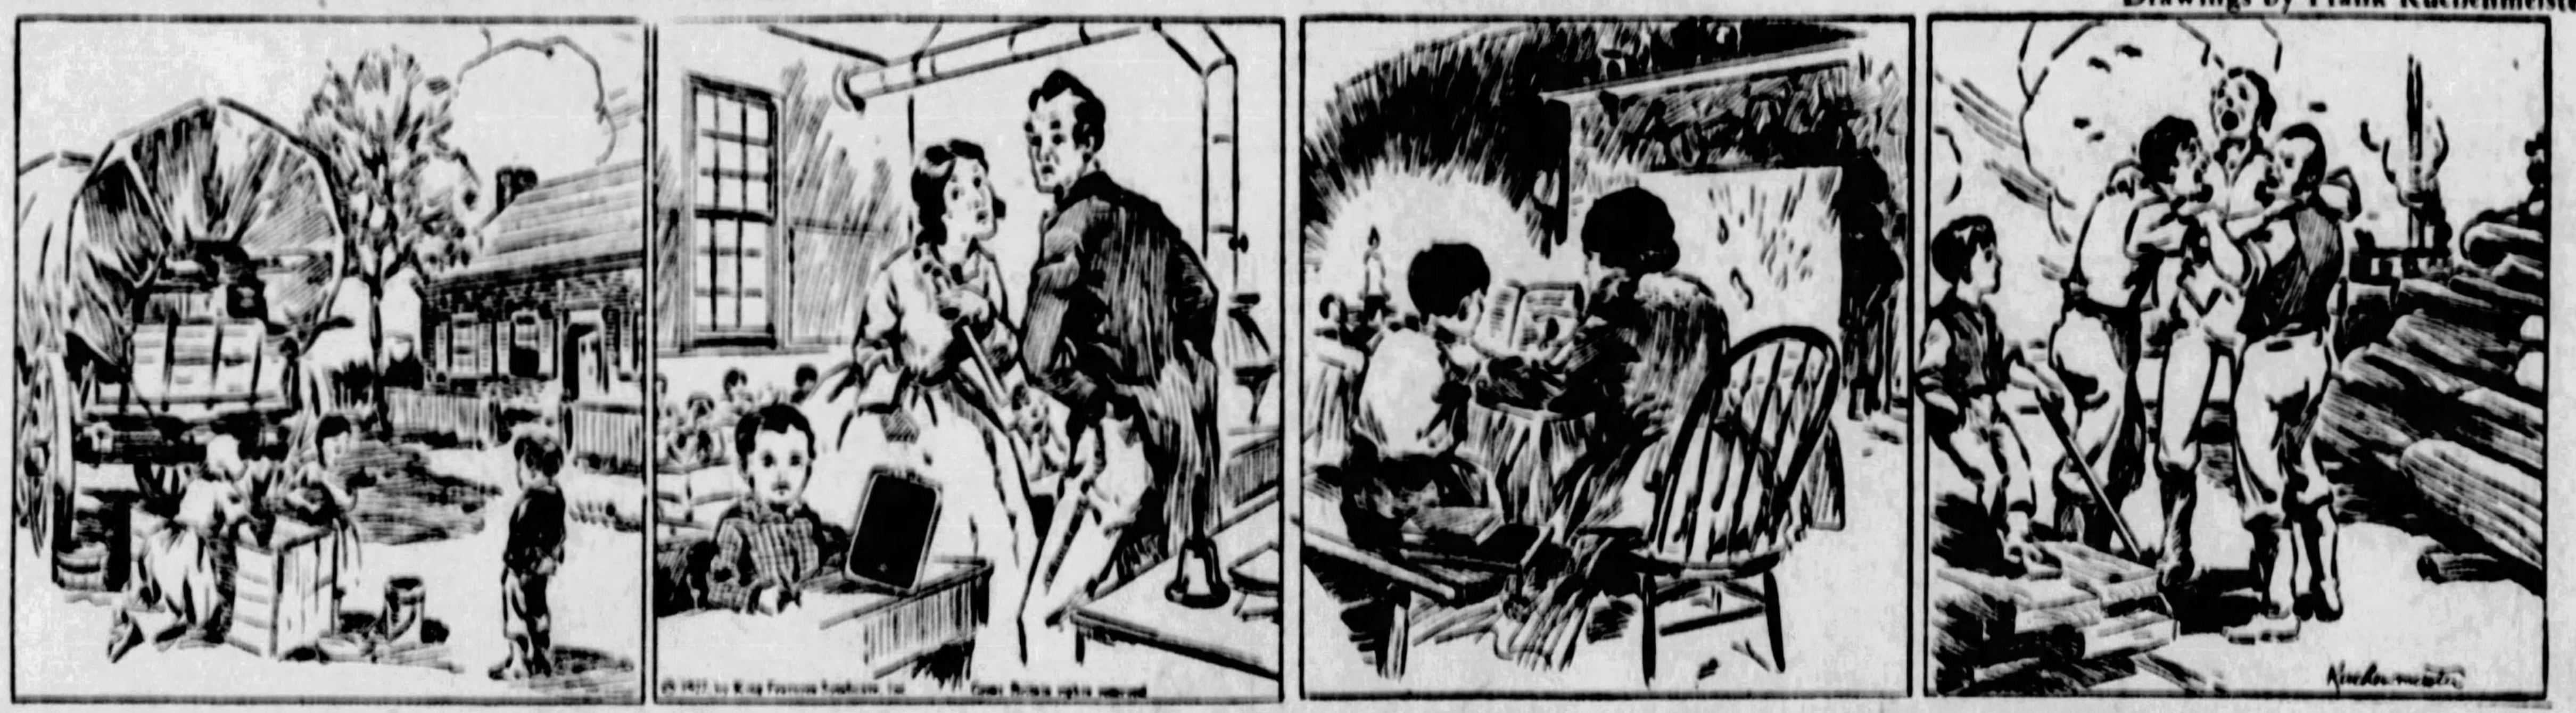
THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

(Authorized and Endorsed by Mr. Edison)

Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



AT the then thriving town of Milan, O., Thomas Alva Edison was born February 11, 1847, and as a very young child he exhibited those keen powers of observation which have contributed so much to his greatness. At three or four years of age he would watch by the hour trains of covered wagons camped in front of his home on their way to the faraway gold fields of California.

EDISON and Roosevelt, both with tremendous capacity for sustained activity and both of Dutch ancestry, were not strong as children. In fact the young Edison was almost fragile. Because of his "delicacy" he was kept out of school beyond the usual age. In his own words, he was "usually at the foot of the class." One teacher reported him to an inspector as being "addled."

EDISON'S mother, hotly indignant at the teacher's affront, took Edison's education under her own direction. He could not have had a more capable instructor, for she had been a school teacher of exceptional capabilities. Under her sympathetic guidance young Edison obtained a better education than would have been possible in any of the crude local schools of the day.

THERE was plenty of activity about the old home at Milan, of a sort that would deeply interest a child of Edison's serious mentality. Young Edison found the songs of the lumber gangs highly absorbing. At the age of five he had learned them all, an early indication of a memory which has built up a vast mental storehouse of information. (Continued tomorrow)
